Poll Says Ike Would Win N. Y. Electors

Newspaper Editors Give Eisenhower 4½ Per Cent Edge Over Gov. Stevenson

Albany, Oct. 21 (AP)—Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower would win New York state's 45 key electoral votes if the presidential election were held today, newspaper editors in the state estimate.

Their combined estimates give the Republican candidate an edge of about 4½ per cent over his Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

Editors and political writers of 66 papers took part in the Associated Press survey, the second of the campaign.

Their calculations would give Gen. Eisenhower approximately 277,000 more votes than Stevenson.

The figure represents a slight drop in the estimated Eisenhower strength as estimated by the newspapers in a similar survey last August. At that time, the combined estimate gave the general a lead of about 6 per cent, for a plurality of about 360,000.

Both surveys of the state's 62 counties were based on the assumption that the total 1952 presidential vote would be the same as in 1948—6,130,926.

Record Vote Expected

The 1952 vote actually is expected to pass 6½ million, for a new record. The significance of this vital factor is as yet undetermined.

This fall's registration is thought to total about 7½ million, although official figures are yet to be announced. This would be about 500,000 above the record 7,004,676, set four years ago.

Editors admit uncertainty as to what the marked boost in registration may mean on Election Day.

Upstate editors taking part in AP's second survey estimated Eisenhower would get about 61½ per cent of the upstate vote, compared with 38½ per cent for Stevenson. This would mean a Republican plurality of some 689,000.

The Eisenhower percentage is about the same as in the August survey. Stevenson's figure represents a gain of more than 2 per cent.

Stevenson's gain is believed to stem from the allocation to the Democratic-Liberal candidate of most of the 87,204 votes Henry A. Wallace, the 1948 Progressive party nominee, gathered upstate.

Editors apparently feel that Vincent Hallinan, the present Progressive party candidate, will receive little support upstate. Hallinan is running under the American Labor party emblem in this state, as Wallace did.

No Shift Either Way

No upstate county shows any sizeable shift from or to Eisenhower or Stevenson, as compared with the last August estimates.

However, the Buffalo Evening News gave the GOP nominee a 52-48 edge this time in industrial Erie county. Before, the News viewed the contest as a toss-up there.

Eihenhower also has gained slightly in Monroe county, Rochester editors felt.

In Oneida county, the averaged estimates of Utica and Rome editors was unchanged, 52-48, with Eisenhower ahead.

In 1948, President Truman carried Erie, Monroe and Oneida counties by slendar margins, although Gov. Dewey won the entire state by 60,959.

Six of nine New York city papers participating in AP's mid-October survey made estimates for all five counties. Three limited their figures to the counties they largely serve — Richmond, Kings and Queens.

Stevenson received 54 per cent, in the combined New York city estimates. Eisenhower received 41 per cent and Hallinan 5 per cent.

Translated into votes, this would give the Democratic nominee a plurality of about 412,000.

In the August survey, the editors gave Stevenson 55 per cent, Eisenhower 42 per cent and Hallinan slightly more than 2 per cent.

Four years ago, Truman won 51 per cent of the New York city vote, compared with 35.5 for Dewey and 13.5 for Wallace. Wallaces 509,559 votes, 422,355 of them in New York city, enabled Dewey to carry the state.

Queens by 56 Per Cent

Dewey carried Queens and Richmond in 1948, and New York city editors see a GOP repeat for Eisenhower there this year. In each survey, the general was given Queens by 56 per cent. In Richmond, the editors gave him 59 per cent as against 55 per cent in the August survey.

Stevenson's margin in New York, Kings and Bronx counties dropped slightly in the second survey. This time, the papers put the ALP vote in the city at 5 per cent. In August, some editors did not take the ALP vote into account.

In Manhattan, Stevenson's vote was estimated at 55 per cent in the second survey, a drop from 58 in the first. His Bronx estimate also slid slightly from 60 in August to 59 now, while his Kings figure was put at 58 per cent now, a gain of 1 per cent since August.

Speaking specifically of Brooklyn, one editor said:

"There appears to be a lot of uncertainty among the voters. Don't forget—Brooklyn is customarily a Democratic town with a large liberal vote.

"At the start of the campaign

Oveta C. Hobby Heads Democrats for Ike

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A "Democrats for Eisenhower" group has been formed with Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, of Houston, Tex., as its head.

Citizens for Eisenhower-Nixon headquarters announced the new organization yesterday.

Mrs. Hobby is co-publisher and editor of the Houston Post and was the first director of the Women's Army Corps. She will direct the new group from the New York city headquarters of Citizens for Eisenhower-Nixon.

The announcement was accompanied by a statement by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican presidential nominee, that a large number of Democrats have rejected "Stevensonian Trumanism."

Victory Will Give Chance to Help Citizens, He Declares

Aboard the Eisenhower Special in New England, Oct. 21 (AP)—Dwight D. Eishenhower asserted today he still is a "no deal" man and has made no commitments to win supporters in his presidential campaign.

The GOP candidate made this declaration to a chilled crowd of about 4,000 people at Manchester, N. H., in the wake of a statement by Sen. Wayne Morse (R-Ore.) he was offered a "high position in public life."

The Morse statement given to the Portland Oregonian carried the implication he was offered the post only if he would support Eisenhower—and claimed to have documentary evidence which he would produce after the election Nov. 4.

Morse was one of the original Eisenhower-for-President supporters but has since withdrawn his support on the grounds that the general has embraced policies and candidates he cannot accept.

'No Deal Man'

Eisenhower made no mention of Morse in his remarks at Manchester, but he appeared to be taking note of this development as he said he was a "no deal" man.

He also ripped into the administration again with accusations its leaders are "spreading a campaign of fear" that a Republican victory would mean another great depression.

Eisenhower gave no indication he was ready to accept President Truman's statement that he (Truman) had not accused the general

1,500 Reds Push Anew Against Sniper Ridge

South Koreans Resist Chinese in Pitch Darkness—Mud Everywhere

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 21 (AP)—About 1,500 Chinese Reds attacked in a blinding rainstorm tonight in a renewed assault on mud-coated Sniper Ridge.

The Communists struck under cover of an intense artillery and mortar barrage. But South Koreans held them at bay with heavy rifle and artillery fire.

The attack bogged down on the muddy slopes and the Reds withdrew at 8:40 p. m., AP Correspondent John Fujii reported from the front. Fujii said the ridge still was quiet more than two hours later.

An allied officer said the Chinese directed their attack at Pinpoint Hill, highest peak on the ridge.

Couldn't See Chinese

It was so dark the South Koreans couldn't see the Chinese until the attacking troops were almost upon them.

An ominuous quiet hung over nearby Triangle Hill where U. S. Seventh Division troops awaited an expected Chinese onslaught.

Some 20 miles to the east, South Korean troops battled to within 40 yards of the crest of Iron Horse mountain at noon today. They pulled back, however, because their supporting tanks could not find targets through heavy fog that covered the valley floor.

A chill rain fell across the battle front. It pelted the weary Allied troops and turned the earth to mud. Winding trails up the steep slopes became slippery slides.

Planes Are Grounded

Overcast skies grounded UN warplanes.

Reports from the front said the Reds lost more than 7,500 men killed or wounded in the first week of fighting on the two peaks.

U. S. Seventh Division officers said the Reds suffered 4,640 casualties on Triangle alone. On Sniper Ridge, officers of the Republic of Korea (ROK) Second Division estimated the Red toll at 3,000 killed or wounded.

These figures do not include casualties inflicted by Allied warplanes which have swarmed around the two peaks in almost continuous attack.

These estimates brought reported Communist casualties for October to more than 25,000.

Workers Are Irked At Union Methods

Have Nothing Against Firm at Island Dock; Ask Craft Distinctions

The wildcat strike staged Monday by members of Local 720, Boilermakers, AFL, was still in effect this morning at Island Dock, Inc., but there were differences of opinion as to the number of men involved.

It was reported Monday by John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., president of the company, that approximately 30 men were out.

A crowd estimated at 75 men were at the entrance to Island Dock this morning and spokesmen, who asked that their names not be used, claimed that more than 100 men, both members of the Boilermakers union and "sympathizers," were participating in the strike.

Dislike Contract Delay

Spokesmen for the workers stated that negotiations for a new contract to replace the old one, which expired August 21, had been unnecessarily delayed. They also claimed that under the old contract they had received "no holidays and no vacations," that there was no craft labor organization at the yard, making it possible for the company to require any employe to do any job, whether it was in his field or not, and that the "walkout is indefinite until we get some satisfaction."

Spokesmen also stated, "We have got nothing against management, but we are thoroughly disgusted with union representation." They denied that the strike was "CIO instigated" as charged yesterday by Schoonmaker.

Calls Strike Illegal

George E. Yerry, Jr., business agent for the Metal Trades Council, of which the Boilermakers union is an affiliate, said today that "the strike is still illegal," pointing out that under Section 18 of the Taft-Hartley Law a strike was illegal if it was initiated within 60 days after the termination of an agreement, or if the old contract "has been mutually extended, as this one has."

Schoonmaker said that the crowd at the gate was "friendly" and was "not stopping anything. We want them to come back," he stated.

City Has Coldest Oct. 21; Low is 29

The severest cold snap of the fall dropped temperatures in Kingston to 29, a record for October 21, according to the city engineer's office.

The previous low for the date was in 1948, when 31 degrees were recorded. Records date from 1935.

However, a bright sun took off the chill in much of the state today. Tomorrow is expected to be fair and warmer.

Hudson Valley Lowest

The lowest overnight readings were recorded in the Hudson river valley, the Catskill mountains and counties just west of there, the Weather Bureau reported. Poughkeepsie shivered at 18 degrees. It was 16 at Oneonta, the Associated Press reports.

Yesterday's snow flurries ended early last night in most sections.

Other overnight low temperatures reported by the Associated Press:

Glens Falls, 22; Albany, 26; Binghamton, 22; Elmira, 22; La Guardia Airport, outside New York city, 34; Buffalo, 27; Rochester, 26; Syracuse, 29; Utica, 25; Massena, 26.

Boston and New York city had the coldest Oct. 21 they've ever had—with the reading down to 31 in New York. The local norm for this date is 54.

Zoning Discussions Tonight Not Public

The joint meeting of the Kingston Zoning Board and the City Planning Board at 8 p. m. today at city hall will not be a public meeting, it was announced today by Lawrence J. MacAvery, chairman of the planning. The Freeman announced Monday that the meeting would be open to the public.

MacAvery pointed out that the meeting tonight was a regularly scheduled one for the planning board and that the zoning board was joining with it for the purpose of discussing proposed amendments to the zoning law.

Hiss Makes No Move

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Alger Hiss, one of the side-issues of the presidential campaign, becomes eligible for parole just one month from today, Nov. 21, but he has made no move toward getting out of prison. The U. S. Parole Board said today, in response to an inquiry, that the 47-year-old former State Department official, serving a five-year term for perjury in Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary, has filed no application with it.

Food Dealers Are Queried in Probe Of Vice in Hudson

3 Butchers, Grocers Go Before Grand Jury to Testify on Purchases for County Jail

Hudson, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—The extraordinary grand jury probing vice in Columbia county today looked into the purchase of food for the county jail.

Three Hudson meat and grocery dealers each spent about half an hour in the jury room this morning. They were Samuel Miller, Morton Ginsberg and William Braker.

John Bermingham, assistant counsel to Special Prosecutor Paul Williams, said this phase of the state-ordered inquiry was linked to the "general investigation" of Sheriff Milton V. Saulpaugh's office.

Sheriff Refuses Answers

Saulpaugh was the first witness to go before the grand jury, impaneled last April following testimony at a state Crime Commission hearing of alleged links between gamblers and office-holders.

He also has appeared since then.

Saulpaugh resigned as Republican county chairman after appearing at the hearing in September, 1951. The sheriff stood on his constitutional privilege and refused to answer several questions pertaining to alleged political contributions to the Republican party.

Kelly Prefers Death to Life Term, His Counsel Tells Governor Dewey

Convicted Killer Would Have 'Justice,' Instead; Lawyer Says Doctors Say He Is Recovered From Insanity They Said He Suffered

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey held a clemency hearing in New York today for Edward H. Kelly of Kingston, doomed to die in the Sing Sing electric chair October 30.

Kelly, a 54-year-old former real estate broker, says he prefers to die as decreed by the courts to spending the rest of his life in prison, the Associated Press reports.

He is scheduled to die in Sing Sing next week for the shooting of Mrs. Eloise McHugh on Main street, this city, May 22, 1950.

His attorney, Whitman Knapp, told the governor in a letter written yesterday that Kelly had given him "peremptory instructions to make no application for executive clemency."

The results of the hearing will be announced.

Doesn't Ask Mercy

Knapp said that Kelly believes "he is entitled to justice, but does not want mercy" and that "he was insane at the time of the crime." Knapp added:

"However, since the crime, if committed by a sane man, would have been the most despicable imaginable, he believes that the finding of society through the courts that he was sane carries with it a finding that he has no further right to live.

"In addition, although realizing the hardship his execution will cause his family, he prefers the physical death decreed by the court to the living death that would be entailed in a sentence to life imprisonment."

Grammer Defense Ends Case Abruptly

Attorneys to Give Final Arguments Thursday—Woman Testifies

Baltimore, Oct. 21 (AP)—The defense ended its case abruptly today without putting George Edward Grammer on the witness stand to tell his story about the strange death of his wife.

Attorneys were given until Thursday morning to prepare their final arguments for and against the conviction of the 35-year-old New York office manager for first degree murder.

The unexpected end of the defense case came after Grammer's attorney briefly questioned an attractive United Nations secretary who testified yesterday she and Grammer had talked about marriage.

Mathilda Mizibrocky's testimony was what the state felt it needed to pinpoint what it has contended from the start of the week-long trial — that Grammer killed his wife so he could wed the pert 28-year-old United Nations officeworker.

Dorothy May Grammer's body was pulled out of her car the night of Aug. 19 after it ran out of control down a sloping suburban Baltimore road. On her head were deep gashes the medical examiner

'No Such Thing,' Truman Declares

President Says Republicans Are 'Distorting' His Friday Remarks

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Truman says he did not call Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower "anti-Catholic and anti-Jewish." Some Republican leaders, he says, are "deliberately distorting" his words.

"I said no such thing," the President said in a statement issued yesterday on the eve of his departure on his next-to-last campaign tour for the man he wants to succeed him, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

At the same time, Truman added, he stands by his statement that the GOP presidential nominee "cannot escape responsibility" for his endorsement of Re-

Smith's Daughter Backs Eisenhower At Boston Rally

Mrs. Emily S. Warner Says 'Happy Warrior' Not One to Foster Such Democrats

Boston, Oct. 21 (AP) — The daughter of the late Alfred E. Smith, the "Happy Warrior" of the Democratic party, today endorsed the presidential candidacy of Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mrs. Emily Smith Warner spoke on Boston Common before a noon assembly that also heard Eisenhower in one of his New England campaign speeches.

Would Have Been Aghast

Saying her principles are formed by a devotion to her father's ideals, Mrs. Warner added:

"He would have fought bitterly against the increasing trend toward domination and centralization in Washington....He would have stood aghast at the picture of corruption which has been created in Washington during the 20 years of domination by a political party which once held his faith and now denies it, and he would have seen in General Eisenhower the world's best hope for crushing communism."

Mrs. Warner, now of New York, is the wife of the retired head of the New York State Police.

Stevenson Goes On Another Tour

Adlai Tells Hometown His Drive Goes Well —Raps at Ike

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 21 (AP)—Given a rousing sendoff by Illinois home folks, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson strikes out today on a final 12-state whistle stopping tour aimed primarily at capturing New York's vital 45 electoral votes.

The Democratic presidential nominee told a cheering crowd estimated at 5,500 persons in the Springfield, Ill., armory last night that his bid for the presidency "is going well." Friends and neighbors turned out before the rally for a torchlight, horn-blowing parade to bid the governor goodbye.

Says He Has Trouble

Asserting that he was having trouble "getting my opponent to talk sense about the issues," Stevenson said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is "saying one thing" while Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio assures the country "that he really meant something else."

"While the galaxy of political followers ride off in all directions, with the general struggling mightily to keep from falling off the thrashing elephant, the expediency of it all is showing through—no policy, no program and no real faith in the future of America," Stevenson declared.

Reviews His Bid

The Democratic nominee renewed his bid for farm support—vital in this midwestern area—with a recitation of all of the measures he said Democrats had pushed through Congress despite the opposition of Republicans. He scoffed at the GOP contention that the Democrats want to "regiment" the farmer, adding:

"The thunderous exhortations about socialism, bureaucracy, regimentation and all of the other evils in the devil's diary sound like the GOP oratory of four, eight, 12 and yes, 16 years ago.

Dykstra Deplores Effort Of President as Bigotry

The following is the copy of a statement read by the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church, in church Sunday instead of delivering the usual sermon and relates to President Truman's speech in Boston on Friday:

It is Saturday morning and I should be working on tomorrow's sermon, but I have just read the New York morning paper and the temptation to write you is too strong to resist.

It is Mr. Truman's speech in Boston yesterday that is on my mind. And as I think about that speech, at the very outset I want to say that while it is always difficult to unlock one's self from the conditionings of one's thought and life, I am sure that I am writing you neither as a clergyman nor as one who has voted against the President's party down the years. Indeed, if I thought that my feelings just now were prompted either by the fact that I am a clergyman or one who is apt to vote Republican, I am sure I would not be writing you at all.

There are many things in the President's talks of yesterday which can be challenged. For instance, they found their place as part of a campaign program that seeks to win an election by the sole argument that (to use Mr. Stevenson's phrase in Texas) "you never had it so good before." It is the evolution of a new and different kind of "laissez faire" which

Newspaper Editors Give Eisenhower 4½ Per Cent Edge Over Gov. Stevenson

Albany, Oct. 21 (AP)—Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower would win New York state's 45 key electoral votes if the presidential election were held today, newspaper editors in the state estimate.

Their combined estimates give the Republican candidate an edge of about 4½ per cent over his Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

Editors and political writers of 66 papers took part in the Associated Press survey, the second of the campaign.

Their calculations would give Gen. Eisenhower approximately 277,000 more votes than Stevenson.

The figure represents a slight drop in the estimated Eisenhower strength as estimated by the newspapers in a similar survey last August. At that time, the combined estimate gave the general a lead of about 6 per cent, for a plurality of about 360,000.

Both surveys of the state's 62 counties were based on the assumption that the total 1952 presidential vote would be the same as in 1948—6,130,926.

Record Vote Expected

The 1952 vote actually is expected to pass 6½ million, for a new record. The significance of this vital factor is as yet undetermined.

This fall's registration is thought to total about 7½ million, although official figures are yet to be announced. This would be about 500,000 above the record 7,004,676, set four years ago.

Editors admit uncertainty as to what the marked boost in registration may mean on Election Day.

Upstate editors taking part in AP's second survey estimated Eisenhower would get about 61½ per cent of the upstate vote, compared with 38½ per cent for Stevenson. This would mean a Republican plurality of some 689,000.

The Eisenhower percentage is about the same as in the August survey. Stevenson's figure represents a gain of more than 2 per cent.

Stevenson's gain is believed to stem from the allocation to the Democratic-Liberal candidate of most of the 87,204 votes Henry A. Wallace, the 1948 Progressive party nominee, gathered upstate.

Editors apparently feel that Vincent Hallinan, the present Progressive party candidate, will receive little support upstate. Hallinan is running under the American Labor party emblem in this state, as Wallace did.

No Shift Either Way

No upstate county shows any sizeable shift from or to Eisenhower or Stevenson, as compared with the last August estimates.

However, the Buffalo Evening News gave the GOP nominee a 52-48 edge this time in industrial Erie county. Before, the News viewed the contest as a toss-up there.

Eihenhower also has gained slightly in Monroe county, Rochester editors felt.

In Oneida county, the averaged estimates of Utica and Rome editors was unchanged, 52-48, with Eisenhower ahead.

In 1948, President Truman carried Erie, Monroe and Oneida counties by slendar margins, although Gov. Dewey won the entire state by 60,959.

Six of nine New York city papers participating in AP's mid-October survey made estimates for all five counties. Three limited their figures to the counties they largely serve — Richmond, Kings and Queens.

Stevenson received 54 per cent, in the combined New York city estimates. Eisenhower received 41 per cent and Hallinan 5 per cent.

Translated into votes, this would give the Democratic nominee a plurality of about 412,000.

In the August survey, the editors gave Stevenson 55 per cent, Eisenhower 42 per cent and Hallinan slightly more than 2 per cent.

Four years ago, Truman won 51 per cent of the New York city vote, compared with 35.5 for Dewey and 13.5 for Wallace. Wallaces 509,559 votes, 422,355 of them in New York city, enabled Dewey to carry the state.

Queens by 56 Per Cent

Dewey carried Queens and Richmond in 1948, and New York city editors see a GOP repeat for Eisenhower there this year. In each survey, the general was given Queens by 56 per cent. In Richmond, the editors gave him 59 per cent as against 55 per cent in the August survey.

Stevenson's margin in New York, Kings and Bronx counties dropped slightly in the second survey. This time, the papers put the ALP vote in the city at 5 per cent. In August, some editors did not take the ALP vote into account.

In Manhattan, Stevenson's vote was estimated at 55 per cent in the second survey, a drop from 58 in the first. His Bronx estimate also slid slightly from 60 in August to 59 now, while his Kings figure was put at 58 per cent now, a gain of 1 per cent since August.

Speaking specifically of Brooklyn, one editor said:

"There appears to be a lot of uncertainty among the voters. Don't forget—Brooklyn is customarily a Democratic town with a large liberal vote.

A crowd estimated at 75 men were at the entrance to Island Dock this morning and spokesmen, who asked that their names not be used, claimed that more than 100 men, both members of the Boilermakers union and "sympathizers," were participating in the strike.

Dislike Contract Delay

Spokesmen for the workers stated that negotiations for a new contract to replace the old one, which expired August 21, had been unnecessarily delayed. They also claimed that under the old contract they had received "no holidays and no vacations," that there was no craft labor organization at the yard, making it possible for the company to require any employe to do any job, whether it was in his field or not, and that the "walkout is indefinite until we get some satisfaction."

Spokesmen also stated, "We have got nothing against management, but we are thoroughly disgusted with union representation." They denied that the strike was "CIO instigated" as charged yesterday by Schoonmaker.

Calls Strike Illegal

George E. Yerry, Jr., business agent for the Metal Trades Council, of which the Boilermakers union is an affiliate, said today that "the strike is still illegal," pointing out that under Section 18 of the Taft-Hartley Law a strike was illegal if it was initiated within 60 days after the termination of an agreement, or if the old contract "has been mutually extended, as this one has."

Schoonmaker said that the crowd at the gate was "friendly" and was "not stopping anything. We want them to come back," he stated.

City Has Coldest Oct. 21; Low is 29

The severest cold snap of the fall dropped temperatures in Kingston to 29, a record for October 21, according to the city engineer's office.

The previous low for the date was in 1948, when 31 degrees were recorded. Records date from 1935.

However, a bright sun took off the chill in much of the state today. Tomorrow is expected to be fair and warmer.

Hudson Valley Lowest

The lowest overnight readings were recorded in the Hudson river valley, the Catskill mountains and counties just west of there, the Weather Bureau reported. Poughkeepsie shivered at 18 degrees. It was 16 at Oneonta, the Associated Press reports.

Yesterday's snow flurries ended early last night in most sections.

Other overnight low temperatures reported by the Associated Press:

Glens Falls, 22; Albany, 26; Binghamton, 22; Elmira, 22; La Guardia Airport, outside New York city, 34; Buffalo, 27; Rochester, 26; Syracuse, 29; Utica, 25; Massena, 26.

Boston and New York city had the coldest Oct. 21 they've ever had—with the reading down to 31 in the Massachusetts city, 32.9 in New York. The local norm for this date is 54.

Zoning Discussions Tonight Not Public

The joint meeting of the Kingston Zoning Board and the City Planning Board at 8 p. m. today at city hall will not be a public meeting, it was announced today by Lawrence J. MacAvery, chairman of the planning. The Freeman announced Monday that the meeting would be open to the public.

MacAvery pointed out that the meeting tonight was a regularly scheduled one for the planning board and that the zoning board was joining with it for the purpose of discussing proposed amendments to the zoning law.

Hiss Makes No Move

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Alger Hiss, one of the side-issues of the presidential campaign, becomes eligible for parole just one month from today, Nov. 21, but he has made no move toward getting out of prison. The U. S. Parole Board said today, in response to an inquiry, that the 47-year-old former State Department official, serving a five-year term for perjury in Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary, has filed no application with it.

Food Dealers Are Queried in Probe Of Vice in Hudson

3 Butchers, Grocers Go Before Grand Jury to Testify on Purchases for County Jail

Hudson, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—The extraordinary grand jury probing vice in Columbia county today looked into the purchase of food for the county jail.

Three Hudson meat and grocery dealers each spent about half an hour in the jury room this morning. They were Samuel Miller, Morton Ginsberg and William Braker.

John Bermingham, assistant counsel to Special Prosecutor Paul Williams, said this phase of the state-ordered inquiry was linked to the "general investigation" of Sheriff Milton V. Saulpaugh's office.

Sheriff Refuses Answers

Saulpaugh was the first witness to go before the grand jury, impaneled last April following testimony at a state Crime Commission hearing of alleged links between gamblers and office-holders.

He also has appeared since then.

Saulpaugh resigned as Republican county chairman after appearing at the hearing in September, 1951. The sheriff stood on his constitutional privilege and refused to answer several questions pertaining to alleged political contributions to the Republican party.

Kelly Prefers Death to Life Term, His Counsel Tells Governor Dewey

Convicted Killer Would Have 'Justice,' Instead; Lawyer Says Doctors Say He Is Recovered From Insanity They Said He Suffered

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey held a clemency hearing in New York today for Edward H. Kelly of Kingston, doomed to die in the Sing Sing electric chair October 30.

Kelly, a 54-year-old former real estate broker, says he prefers to die as decreed by the courts to spending the rest of his life in prison, the Associated Press reports.

He is scheduled to die in Sing Sing next week for the shooting of Mrs. Eloise McHugh on Main street, this city, May 22, 1950.

His attorney, Whitman Knapp, told the governor in a letter written yesterday that Kelly had given him "peremptory instructions to make no application for executive clemency."

The results of the hearing will be announced.

Doesn't Ask Mercy

Knapp said that Kelly believes "he is entitled to justice, but does not want mercy" and that "he was insane at the time of the crime." Knapp added:

"However, since the crime, if committed by a sane man, would have been the most despicable imaginable, he believes that the finding of society through the courts that he was sane carries with it a finding that he has no further right to live.

"In addition, although realizing the hardship his execution will cause his family, he prefers the physical death decreed by the court to the living death that would be entailed in a sentence to life imprisonment."

Killed May 22, 1950

Grammer Defense Ends Case Abruptly

Attorneys to Give Final Arguments Thursday—Woman Testifies

Baltimore, Oct. 21 (AP)—The defense ended its case abruptly today without putting George Edward Grammer on the witness stand to tell his story about the strange death of his wife.

Attorneys were given until Thursday morning to prepare their final arguments for and against the conviction of the 35-year-old New York office manager for first degree murder.

The unexpected end of the defense case came after Grammer's attorney briefly questioned an attractive United Nations secretary who testified yesterday she and Grammer had talked about marriage.

Mathilda Mizibrocky's testimony was what the state felt it needed to pinpoint what it has contended from the start of the week-long trial — that Grammer killed his wife so he could wed the pert 28-year-old United Nations officeworker.

Dorothy May Grammer's body was pulled out of her car the night of Aug. 19 after it ran out of control down a sloping suburban Baltimore road. On her head were deep gashes the medical examiner

'No Such Thing,' Truman Declares

President Says Republicans Are 'Distorting' His Friday Remarks

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Truman says he did not call Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower "anti-Catholic and anti-Jewish." Some Republican leaders, he says, are "deliberately distorting" his words.

"I said no such thing," the President said in a statement issued yesterday on the eve of his departure on his next-to-last campaign tour for the man he wants to succeed him, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

At the same time, Truman added, he stands by his statement that the GOP presidential nominee "cannot escape responsibility" for his endorsement of Re-

Smith's Daughter Backs Eisenhower At Boston Rally

Mrs. Emily S. Warner Says 'Happy Warrior' Not One to Foster Such Democrats

Boston, Oct. 21 (AP) — The daughter of the late Alfred E. Smith, the "Happy Warrior" of the Democratic party, today endorsed the presidential candidacy of Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mrs. Emily Smith Warner spoke on Boston Common before a noon assembly that also heard Eisenhower in one of his New England campaign speeches.

Would Have Been Aghast

Saying her principles are formed by a devotion to her father's ideals, Mrs. Warner added:

"He would have fought bitterly against the increasing trend toward domination and centralization in Washington....He would have stood aghast at the picture of corruption which has been created in Washington during the 20 years of domination by a political party which once held his faith and now denies it, and he would have seen in General Eisenhower the world's best hope for crushing communism."

Mrs. Warner, now of New York, is the wife of the retired head of the New York State Police.

Stevenson Goes On Another Tour

Adlai Tells Hometown His Drive Goes Well —Raps at Ike

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 21 (AP)—Given a rousing sendoff by Illinois home folks, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson strikes out today on a final 12-state whistle stopping tour aimed primarily at capturing New York's vital 45 electoral votes.

The Democratic presidential nominee told a cheering crowd estimated at 5,500 persons in the Springfield, Ill., armory last night that his bid for the presidency "is going well." Friends and neighbors turned out before the rally for a torchlight, horn-blowing parade to bid the governor goodbye.

Says He Has Trouble

Asserting that he was having trouble "getting my opponent to talk sense about the issues," Stevenson said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is "saying one thing" while Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio assures the country "that he really meant something else."

"While the galaxy of political followers ride off in all directions, with the general struggling mightily to keep from falling off the thrashing elephant, the expediency of it all is showing through—no policy, no program and no real faith in the future of America," Stevenson declared.

Reviews His Bid

The Democratic nominee renewed his bid for farm support—vital in this midwestern area—with a recitation of all of the measures he said Democrats had pushed through Congress despite the opposition of Republicans. He scoffed at the GOP contention that the Democrats want to "regiment" the farmer, adding:

"The thunderous exhortations about socialism, bureaucracy, regimentation and all of the other evils in the devil's diary sound like the GOP oratory of four, eight, 12 and yes, 16 years ago.

Dykstra Deplores Effort Of President as Bigotry

The following is the copy of a statement read by the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church, in church Sunday instead of delivering the usual sermon and relates to President Truman's speech in Boston on Friday:

It is Saturday morning and I should be working on tomorrow's sermon, but I have just read the New York morning paper and the temptation to write you is too strong to resist.

It is Mr. Truman's speech in Boston yesterday that is on my mind. And as I think about that speech, at the very outset I want to say that while it is always difficult to unlock one's self from the conditionings of one's thought and life, I am sure that I am writing you neither as a clergyman nor as one who has voted against the President's party down the years. Indeed, if I thought that my feelings just now were prompted either by the fact that I am a clergyman or one who is apt to vote Republican, I am sure I would not be writing you at all.

There are many things in the President's talks of yesterday which can be challenged. For instance, they found their place as part of a campaign program that seeks to win an election by the sole argument that (to use Mr. Stevenson's phrase in Texas) "you never had it so good before." It is the evolution of a new and different kind of "laissez faire" which

Admits to Blame, Says $51,000 Claim Is Too Exorbitant

Admitting responsibility for an accident which took place on the evening of August 24, 1951, on route 209, Alfred Lead, driver of a car traveling north defends an action in Supreme court brought by Emery E. Tompkins, formerly of Ellenville, who was operating his car southerly toward Kerhonkson, only on the grounds that Tompkins was not seriously injured.

Tompkins alleges permanent injury and damage to his car. He charges that he suffered serious injury which confined him to his bed for four weeks and that for the ensuing two weeks he was unable to resume his work as a salesman. An action was commenced for $25,000 but the complaint was later amended to $50,000 and the plaintiff now demands over $51,000 in damages.

Philip Korn for plaintiff alleges serious permanent damages but on the admission of responsibility of defendant will confine his case to proving extent of injuries, no testimony as to the circumstances surrounding the accident will be required. Stanley B. Johnson of Johnson and McCann, Newburgh, appears for the defendant and in his opening of the case admitted the responsibility of the defendant but contended the injuries were of a minor nature and asked the jury to compensate the plaintiff on a basis of the injuries proven.

Used Hubby Ruse To Steal $7,600

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A young girl bandit, with shrewd knowledge of female psychology, today led a $7,600 robbery of a Brooklyn home.

Occupants were left bound and gagged in the basement.

The girl, dressed in skirt, blouse and with a turban over her hair, called at the two-story home, and told Mrs. Anna Feldman:

"I want to talk to you about your husband."

Mrs. Feldman invited her inside. After a few moments the girl drew a gun. Mrs. Feldman screamed. Her son, Paul, 8, came running down from upstairs, pleading, "Please don't hurt my mother."

"Shut up, or you'll both get it," the girl said, shooing the pair down into the basement, where a maid, Jean Williams, was starting to call police. "Put down that phone, if you want to keep living," the girl barked.

She then admitted two well-dressed male partners through a door.

They took $800 cash, after forcing Mrs. Feldman to tell where the money was hidden under a chair cushion, and used soap lather to remove three diamond rings, valued at $6,800, from her fingers. They tied the trio to chairs, and left. The maid worked free after 15 minutes and released the others.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A few issues held the stock market on a fairly even keel today.

Losses outnumbered the gains but advances in a few key issues held the averages about unchanged from yesterday.

There was a brief flurry in aircraft stocks, led by Boeing. But it was short lived and within a matter of minutes these issues began to fall back a bit.

Price changes were mostly in fractions. Seaboard, however, was ahead around three points at one time but in later trading it dropped from the day's high.

There was an air of caution in the market as the number of idle mine workers increased. As the coal strike spread, there was growing idleness on large coal-carrying railroads.

Excepting for the labor situation in the coal country, however, the news wasn't too bad.

There were plenty of predictions of good fourth quarter business generally. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported nonfarm employment hit a record high last month.

Many traders were encouraged by the lack of activity during selling periods at the past couple of sessions.

The short-lived flurry in aircraft stocks left Boeing and Lockheed ahead fractions about midway through the session.

Among the declines were Youngstown Steel, Philco, Kennecott, General Electric, Santa Fe, Standard Oil (N.J.) and U. S. Gypsum.

Walter R. Clarke Killed

As state police from Highland station were investigating a fatal two-car collision shortly before press time, an employe at Young's Garage, Milton, said a prominent Milton area fruit grower, Walter R. Clarke, was the victim.

According to the troopers, the accident occurred on the Milton Turnpike, two miles west of the garage, shortly after 1 p. m.

At Young's garage, it was said that the dead man, aside from being one of the area's well known fruit growers, was a director of the First National Bank of Milton.

State police said Clarke, driving his own car, ran off the side of the road, swerved back and struck a kerosene tank truck.

The truck, they said, belonged to GLF Petroleum Distributors of Milton, and was driven by Leon M. Mehl, 19, of RD Walden.

Sgt. William Martin, saying the investigation was continuing, said Clarke in his late 60s apparently suffered a heart seizure.

Coroner Ernest A. Kelly was called on the case.

86 Natives Arrested

Nairobi, Kenya, Oct. 21 (AP)—Kenya authorities arrested at least 86 natives today in a round-up of suspected members of the secret anti-white Mau Mau Society that has been terrorizing this British East African colony for months. Among them was Jomo Kenyatta, president of the African Union. (In London, the colonial office said more than 130 suspected Mau Maus had been taken into custody.) The roundup was carried out under a state of emergency—equivalent to martial law—declared last night by the Kenya government. A battalion of British troops, the Lancashire Fusiliers, were landed here by air to add steel to the government's drive.

Czech Reds 'Conquer' Boy Scout Influence

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Czech Communists report they have just about conquered the "unhealthy" influences of the Boy Scout movement.

Before the Communists took over four years ago, said a Prague radio broadcast picked up by U. S. government monitors, the Scouts sought to "befog young people about loving cooperation between rich and poor." The broadcast also said the Scouts "promoted an unhealthy romanticism in the young, centering on cowboys, redskins and conquerors, instead of teaching them that it is their mission to build a better social order."

These influences have not yet entirely disappeared, radio Prague asknowledged, but it said they are fast being overcome by the Communist-run Young Pioneer Movement. It added:

"The Pioneers are very fond of defense games. Our children, our young Pioneers have no need for hypocritical, empty romanticism. They are taught to love their country and the Soviet Union which is helping us to realize the age old dreams of our people above everything else."

Still Seek Bandit In Empire Robbery

No new developments were reported today in police investigation of the Empire Market robbery Saturday night in which a masked bandit is alleged to have taken approximately $8,000 from an employe at gunpoint.

Police were still seeking clues to the identity of the tall, dark-haired man who held up Bernard Orr, assistant manager of the store, shortly after 7 p. m. as he was about to deposit the money in the night slot of the uptown branch of the Kingston Trust Co. at Main and Fair streets.

This was the second robbery of the store this year, two men wearing gray slouch hats having held up Charles Turner, Empire Market manager, as he was locking up on the night of May 30 and taking $2,882 in small bills and coins from the store safe.

Post Endorses Ike

Boston, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Boston Post, which describes itself as "an independent newspaper with a long democratic tradition," today endorsed Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican candidate for president. In a front page editorial, the paper said: "As we see it, there are three or four paramount issues. The first is communism. We don't intend to imply in any way that Gov. (Adlai) Stevenson (the Democratic nominee) is in favor of communism. But we don't like his association in this campaign with pinks who have the super-liberal outlook." John J. Fox, Boston financier, purchased the paper a few months ago and announced his basic policy would be to fight communism.

Penguins often will brood a sball rock or piece of ice, mistaking it for an egg.

Morse Says HST, Not Ike, Made Bid

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse (R.-Ore.) said today he was offered a "very high post" by the Truman administration several months ago but turned it down because he thought a Republican should not serve in a Democratic administration.

Morse told a reporter this was what he had in mind when he told the Portland Oregonian in a telephone interview yesterday that he had been offered a high position. He said the Oregonian was mistaken in interpreting his statement as an intimation that representatives of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had offered him a high post if he would support the Republican presidential nominee.

Morse announced last week he was supporting Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson.

Victim, He Says

He said he planned to go to Oregon after the election and make a speech titled "Now It Can Be Told," which "will show that nobody has been more a victim of the two party system than I have."

"I will produce documentary evidence," he said, "to show I was offered a very high post by the Democratic administration and that I turned it down because I did not think a Republican should take it under a Democratic administration."

Smith Is Transferred To Hackensack Hospital

Edward W. Smith, 31, of Teaneck, N. J., who was injured Saturday night in a motor vehicle accident on Route 9W near Esopus, was transferred on Monday from Kingston Hospital to a hospital in Hackensack, the local hospital reported today. Smith's condition prior to his transfer had been reported as "fair."

State police said Smith was the driver of an automobile involved in a three-vehicle collision about 7:30 p. m. Saturday. Five other persons were treated for injuries following the accident, troopers said.

Sparkman Enters Hospital

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sen. John J. Sparkman, Democratic vice presidential nominee, entered a hospital today for treatment of laryngitis and what his physician termed a mild respiratory condition. Admits to Blame, Says $51,000 Claim Is Too Exorbitant

Admitting responsibility for an accident which took place on the evening of August 24, 1951, on route 209, Alfred Lead, driver of a car traveling north defends an action in Supreme court brought by Emery E. Tompkins, formerly of Ellenville, who was operating his car southerly toward Kerhonkson, only on the grounds that Tompkins was not seriously injured.

Tompkins alleges permanent injury and damage to his car. He charges that he suffered serious injury which confined him to his bed for four weeks and that for the ensuing two weeks he was unable to resume his work as a salesman. An action was commenced for $25,000 but the complaint was later amended to $50,000 and the plaintiff now demands over $51,000 in damages.

Philip Korn for plaintiff alleges serious permanent damages but on the admission of responsibility of defendant will confine his case to proving extent of injuries, no testimony as to the circumstances surrounding the accident will be required. Stanley B. Johnson of Johnson and McCann, Newburgh, appears for the defendant and in his opening of the case admitted the responsibility of the defendant but contended the injuries were of a minor nature and asked the jury to compensate the plaintiff on a basis of the injuries proven.

Used Hubby Ruse To Steal $7,600

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A young girl bandit, with shrewd knowledge of female psychology, today led a $7,600 robbery of a Brooklyn home.

Occupants were left bound and gagged in the basement.

The girl, dressed in skirt, blouse and with a turban over her hair, called at the two-story home, and told Mrs. Anna Feldman:

"I want to talk to you about your husband."

Mrs. Feldman invited her inside. After a few moments the girl drew a gun. Mrs. Feldman screamed. Her son, Paul, 8, came running down from upstairs, pleading, "Please don't hurt my mother."

"Shut up, or you'll both get it," the girl said, shooing the pair down into the basement, where a maid, Jean Williams, was starting to call police. "Put down that phone, if you want to keep living," the girl barked.

She then admitted two well-dressed male partners through a door.

They took $800 cash, after forcing Mrs. Feldman to tell where the money was hidden under a chair cushion, and used soap lather to remove three diamond rings, valued at $6,800, from her fingers. They tied the trio to chairs, and left. The maid worked free after 15 minutes and released the others.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A few issues held the stock market on a fairly even keel today.

Losses outnumbered the gains but advances in a few key issues held the averages about unchanged from yesterday.

There was a brief flurry in aircraft stocks, led by Boeing. But it was short lived and within a matter of minutes these issues began to fall back a bit.

Price changes were mostly in fractions. Seaboard, however, was ahead around three points at one time but in later trading it dropped from the day's high.

There was an air of caution in the market as the number of idle mine workers increased. As the coal strike spread, there was growing idleness on large coal-carrying railroads.

Excepting for the labor situation in the coal country, however, the news wasn't too bad.

There were plenty of predictions of good fourth quarter business generally. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported nonfarm employment hit a record high last month.

Many traders were encouraged by the lack of activity during selling periods at the past couple of sessions.

The short-lived flurry in aircraft stocks left Boeing and Lockheed ahead fractions about midway through the session.

Among the declines were Youngstown Steel, Philco, Kennecott, General Electric, Santa Fe, Standard Oil (N.J.) and U. S. Gypsum.

Walter R. Clarke Killed

As state police from Highland station were investigating a fatal two-car collision shortly before press time, an employe at Young's Garage, Milton, said a prominent Milton area fruit grower, Walter R. Clarke, was the victim.

According to the troopers, the accident occurred on the Milton Turnpike, two miles west of the garage, shortly after 1 p. m.

At Young's garage, it was said that the dead man, aside from being one of the area's well known fruit growers, was a director of the First National Bank of Milton.

State police said Clarke, driving his own car, ran off the side of the road, swerved back and struck a kerosene tank truck.

The truck, they said, belonged to GLF Petroleum Distributors of Milton, and was driven by Leon M. Mehl, 19, of RD Walden.

Sgt. William Martin, saying the investigation was continuing, said Clarke in his late 60s apparently suffered a heart seizure.

Coroner Ernest A. Kelly was called on the case.

86 Natives Arrested

Nairobi, Kenya, Oct. 21 (AP)—Kenya authorities arrested at least 86 natives today in a round-up of suspected members of the secret anti-white Mau Mau Society that has been terrorizing this British East African colony for months. Among them was Jomo Kenyatta, president of the African Union. (In London, the colonial office said more than 130 suspected Mau Maus had been taken into custody.) The roundup was carried out under a state of emergency—equivalent to martial law—declared last night by the Kenya government. A battalion of British troops, the Lancashire Fusiliers, were landed here by air to add steel to the government's drive.

Czech Reds 'Conquer' Boy Scout Influence

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Czech Communists report they have just about conquered the "unhealthy" influences of the Boy Scout movement.

Before the Communists took over four years ago, said a Prague radio broadcast picked up by U. S. government monitors, the Scouts sought to "befog young people about loving cooperation between rich and poor." The broadcast also said the Scouts "promoted an unhealthy romanticism in the young, centering on cowboys, redskins and conquerors, instead of teaching them that it is their mission to build a better social order."

These influences have not yet entirely disappeared, radio Prague asknowledged, but it said they are fast being overcome by the Communist-run Young Pioneer Movement. It added:

"The Pioneers are very fond of defense games. Our children, our young Pioneers have no need for hypocritical, empty romanticism. They are taught to love their country and the Soviet Union which is helping us to realize the age old dreams of our people above everything else."

Still Seek Bandit In Empire Robbery

No new developments were reported today in police investigation of the Empire Market robbery Saturday night in which a masked bandit is alleged to have taken approximately $8,000 from an employe at gunpoint.

Police were still seeking clues to the identity of the tall, dark-haired man who held up Bernard Orr, assistant manager of the store, shortly after 7 p. m. as he was about to deposit the money in the night slot of the uptown branch of the Kingston Trust Co. at Main and Fair streets.

This was the second robbery of the store this year, two men wearing gray slouch hats having held up Charles Turner, Empire Market manager, as he was locking up on the night of May 30 and taking $2,882 in small bills and coins from the store safe.

Post Endorses Ike

Boston, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Boston Post, which describes itself as "an independent newspaper with a long democratic tradition," today endorsed Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican candidate for president. In a front page editorial, the paper said: "As we see it, there are three or four paramount issues. The first is communism. We don't intend to imply in any way that Gov. (Adlai) Stevenson (the Democratic nominee) is in favor of communism. But we don't like his association in this campaign with pinks who have the super-liberal outlook." John J. Fox, Boston financier, purchased the paper a few months ago and announced his basic policy would be to fight communism.

Penguins often will brood a sball rock or piece of ice, mistaking it for an egg.

Morse Says HST, Not Ike, Made Bid

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse (R.-Ore.) said today he was offered a "very high post" by the Truman administration several months ago but turned it down because he thought a Republican should not serve in a Democratic administration.

Morse told a reporter this was what he had in mind when he told the Portland Oregonian in a telephone interview yesterday that he had been offered a high position. He said the Oregonian was mistaken in interpreting his statement as an intimation that representatives of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had offered him a high post if he would support the Republican presidential nominee.

Morse announced last week he was supporting Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson.

Victim, He Says

He said he planned to go to Oregon after the election and make a speech titled "Now It Can Be Told," which "will show that nobody has been more a victim of the two party system than I have."

"I will produce documentary evidence," he said, "to show I was offered a very high post by the Democratic administration and that I turned it down because I did not think a Republican should take it under a Democratic administration."

Smith Is Transferred To Hackensack Hospital

Edward W. Smith, 31, of Teaneck, N. J., who was injured Saturday night in a motor vehicle accident on Route 9W near Esopus, was transferred on Monday from Kingston Hospital to a hospital in Hackensack, the local hospital reported today. Smith's condition prior to his transfer had been reported as "fair."

State police said Smith was the driver of an automobile involved in a three-vehicle collision about 7:30 p. m. Saturday. Five other persons were treated for injuries following the accident, troopers said.

Sparkman Enters Hospital

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Sen. John J. Sparkman, Democratic vice presidential nominee, entered a hospital today for treatment of laryngitis and what his physician termed a mild respiratory condition. Sparkman, who had been scheduled to leave on a campaign trip into the South, went to Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital where he is expected to stay several days.

Dies of Cancer

Burgos, Spain, Oct. 21 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Juan Ygue, 62, one of the most prominent leaders of Franco's armies in the civil war and a former air minister, died of cancer here today.

TRUMAN IS DESPERATE

In his desperate attempt to minimize and cover up the mess of gross inefficiency, waste and extravagance in Washington, President Truman again has stooped very low in his personal attacks upon General Eisenhower.

Last week he said that General Eisenhower was "willing to accept the very practices that identified the 'master race,' although he took a leading part in liberating Europe from their domination." To impute to General Eisenhower, prejudice and bigotry of this kind, in the words of Rabbi Hillel Silver, a leading American Rabbi and Zionist leader, is to debase the office of the Presidency and to traduce the standards of fairness and honor by which the American people live.

Knowing Truman's degree of restraint, we wonder what he will say next in order to becloud the genuine issues of communism, high cost of living, influence peddling, gifts and tax favors in the woeful and wasteful Washington mess.

Does Governor Stevenson support the views of his leading campaigner?

It should be evident to all citizens of this country that Truman is out to destroy Eisenhower's prestige by any means at his disposal.

General Eisenhower's personal qualifications are known throughout the world. He has united the free world in both war and peace as no man before him has ever done. He has the ability, the character and the experience to clean up the mess in Washington.

We believe that Truman's attacks on the character of a national hero, who has been chosen a candidate for the office of the President of the United States, will have an effect opposite to that which was intended.

A Massachussetts woman complained to police that her neighbors were too noisy. Police found that they were operating a dice game. It may be all right to have a skeleton in the closet but you had better be certain that the bones don't rattle.

REDS PLAN NEW MOVE IN JAPAN

Two recent events give added shape to the often shadowy form of Russian foreign policy. One was the publication of a new book by Josef Stalin. The other was a conference in Peiping, China.

In his book, Stalin says the most important economic result of World War II was the dividing of the world into two markets, one dominated by the United States and the other by Russia.

Out of this situation, he says, has developed the twin emergence of West Germany and Japan in the United States orbit, both countries so directly competitive they will cause severe conflicts in the Western World. He cites Britain and France as another instance of such competitiveness.

While what Stalin says isn't exactly new, the fact that he places emphasis on it is significant. For, realizing the Communists' historic readiness to stir up and aggravate differences among their enemies, there's every reason to expect them to so act in this case.

How they will operate in detail Stalin's book doesn't say. But the conference in Peiping makes pretty certain that action there will be, whatever its nature.

The Peiping meeting—called a peace conference—was attended by representatives of more than 30 countries, some of them so small as to be identifiable only on a pretty big map.

But the important thing, in the light of Stalin's book, was the emphasis given to the Japanese question. It was the first detailed order of business.

Coincidentally, perhaps, this emphasis on Japan followed by only a day or two the terrific licking the Japanese Communists took at the polls in general election voting. Some observers in that part of the world believe, however, that this setback would serve only to intensify general Communist activities regarding Japan.

Neither Stalin's book nor the Peiping meeting, in themselves, give us very much that is conclusive on Russian plans, but taken together they indicate a pattern. It might well be a pattern we should keep a sharp eye on.

There is supposed to be a switch in Russian policy after the meetings in Moscow. It will probably be noticeable when Russian diplomats add the words "Thank you" after their usual "No."

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

DEMOCRATS AND IKE

It must be shocking to General Eisenhower to discover that politics knows no decency and that politicians have no friends. Since 1941, he has been an active associate of two Democratic Presidents who thought well enough of him to elevate him to high office and to set him before the world as a hero. Now they cannot vilify him sufficiently.

In 1948, these same Democrats wanted Eisenhower to run for President on the Democratic ticket. He was good enough for them then. It was even proposed that he have as his running mate Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

The Socialistic A.D.A. executive committee, in that year, adopted a resolution for the Eisenhower-Douglas ticket at a meeting in Pittsburgh. The report is that Professor Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., currently Stevenson's monolithic brain trust, helped to prepare the document.

What has Eisenhower done since 1948 to earn the enmity of such men as A. A. Berle, Jr., Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and Arthur Schlesinger? Apparently, his major crime was to accept the Republican rather than the Democratic nomination. Did this one fact change Eisenhower for better or for worse? Was his character of one nature in 1948 and of another in 1952? If Eisenhower had accepted the Democratic nomination in 1948 or in 1952, would these same men not be singing paeans to his virtue?

For instance, the master mind of the Stevenson nomination, Jake Arvey, said in 1948:

"Come convention time, I will vote for the man who comes closest to personifying the principles of our party and who can put them into effect. And by that I mean a man who can be elected . . . I hope General Eisenhower is available. He is the kind of a liberal with whom we could win, both nationally and locally."

Is Eisenhower less liberal in 1952 than he was in 1948? Arvey tried hard to get Eisenhower to run as a Democrat, which is his right. No man could have been more excessive in his praise. He said:

"Our advocacy of General Dwight D. Eisenhower for President of the United States developed from unmistakable indications that the people of this country wanted him to serve as President at this time. The people, regardless of political persuasion, obviously deem General Eisenhower to be peculiarly fitted to unite the nation and the world to the end that a lasting peace might be achieved. . . ."

But let us come closer. The United Press reported that Senator Paul Douglas stated on March 17, 1951, he wanted Eisenhower for President. He advocated as late as January 9, 1952, that both parties should nominate Eisenhower. What happened between January and July 1952 for Senator Douglas to have changed his mind about Eisenhower the man? Nothing could have happened, except that Eisenhower chose to run as a Republican and not as a Democrat. There was no change in his character, his appearance, his service to the nation, his ideas, his beliefs during those six months.

Yet, Senator Paul Douglas in January wanted both parties to nominate Eisenhower but after July opposed his election in favor of a man whose nomination he did not support until there was no alternative. It would be interesting if Paul Douglas explained what happened between January and July 1952 to effect so marked a change.

I have before me a volume of quotations from Democrats on the subject of Eisenhower. He must wonder why they now even doubt his right to his historical position of commander of our armies in World War II and commander and organizer of NATO. Surely, that cannot be taken from him even during this dirty campaign, for which many men will be ashamed when it is over.

The real answer is that in this country a Presidential campaign has steadily degenerated. Candidates neither project nor defend issues; they neither support nor oppose principles of life, nor of national well-being. They just call each other names like Little boys sticking their tongues out at each other.

The smears against Richard Nixon, for instance, are outstanding examples of this sort of cheapness. For some unknown reason, the Democrats call him an anti-Semite. Whoever calls him that is a liar. Yet, it is being done every day. Maybe it is being done because he helped to send Alger Hiss to prison. Who knows what absurdities lurk in the irresponsible minds of name-calling politicians?

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

DRY FORM OF CATARRH

One of the most embarrassing and distressing ailments of mankind is the third or dry form of catarrh in which the lining of the nose and of the adjoining sinuses becomes inflamed, dries into scabs and these scabs have a terribly disagreeable odor. The disease is called ozena.

Various methods of treating ozena, including the use of the drug prostigmin, sometimes called neostigmine, are available. This drug helps many cases as does also sex gland extracts, as there is a very definite relationship between the nose and the sex glands.

In Minerva Medicine, Turin, Dr. G. Finocchi reports his results obtained by use of chlorophyll in the treatment of ozena. "Three patients, with ozena at the initial or early stage, and seven in whom the disease had extended to the back of the throat causing headaches, wasting of bone, formation of scabs and the characteristic unpleasant odor, were treated with chlorophyll. A sponge saturated with a 0.5 per cent isotonic solution of chlorophyll or a 1 per cent chlorophyll ointment was applied to the lining (mucous membrane) of the nose daily for two to three hours. Within a few days the bad odor disappeared, scabs and headaches decreased, and the mucous membrane acquired a deeper color.

When the treatment was interrupted for 10 or more days, ozena reappeared rapidly. Elimination or disappearance of the odor was permanent while the chlorophyll ointment or large doses of a powder obtained from the isotonic solution weer appllied every two days.

Dr. Finocchi does not claim that chlorophyll cures ozena; it neutralizes the offensive odor which means much to the happiness and morale of the patient as the odor of ozena makes it practically impossible for the patient to mix with others.

The above will be good news for ozena patients who have been under the care of nose and throat specialists and found they had allowed the disease to spread beyond the ability of these specialists to give them relief.

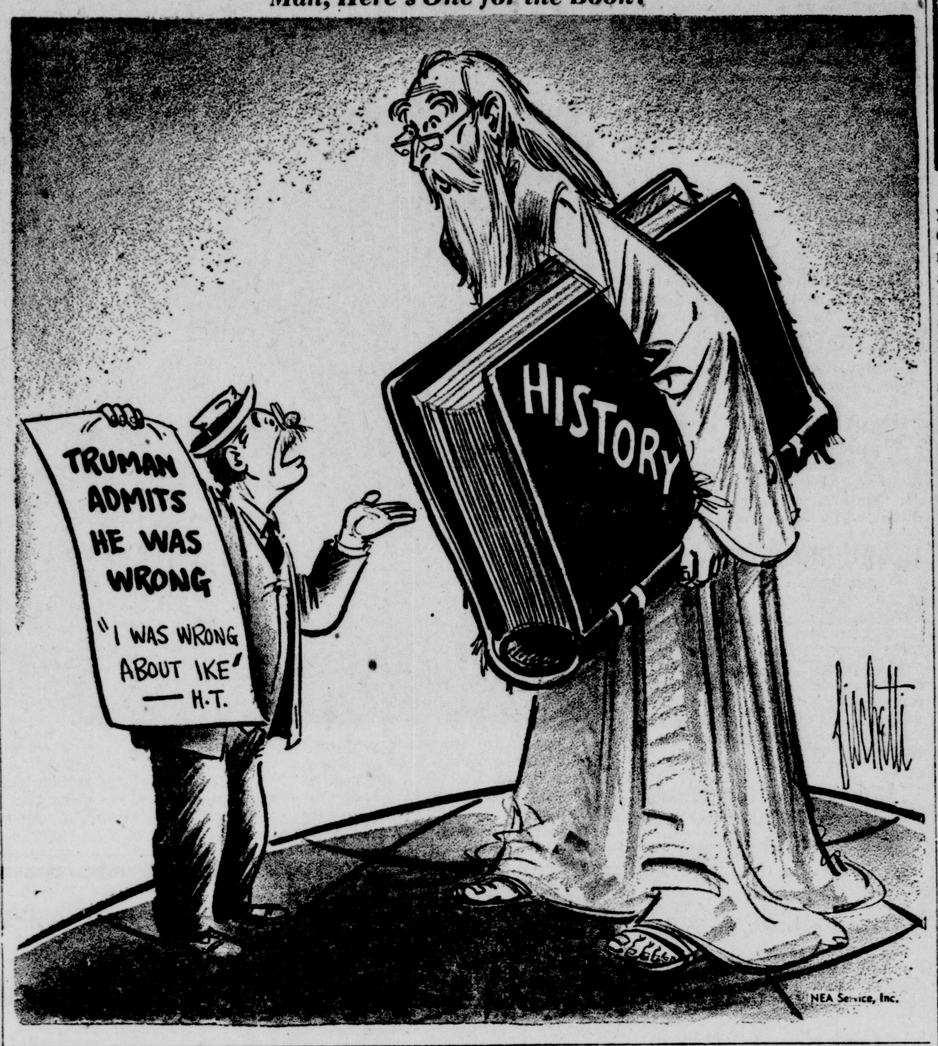

In former articles I have written about the good results obtained with prostigmin (neostigmine) and sex extract. I am, therefore, making known the fact that this terrible odor can be made to disappear by use of chlorophyll.

"Man, Here's One for the Book!"

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have been trying to expose the new yellow journalism of several pretentious monthly magazines, including Redbook, McCall's, the Ladies' Home Journal and the China-Boy Luce Weeklies, Time and Life. Some of the sly editorial tendencies which the knowing eye can detect in these expensive slicks are important lessons in the education of a public which long ago formed a gullible habit of believing that the "big" magazines were above that sort of thing. However, pompous publications, being after all but the works of men, are often victims of the ethical ills that afflict the ink-stained wretches of the daily press. The public "acceptance" of their political propaganda, done in the guise of aloof treatment of topics beneath their ordinary notice, undoubtedly has done considerable damage.

I call attention as earnestly as I can to the strange performance of that demure and sanctimonious little hypodermic called "Reader's Digest," in its job of ballyhoo for Irving Brown, the ambassador-at-large in Europe of David Dubinsky's union of poverty-level American needleworkers and by the national headquarters of the American Federation of Labor. I have exposed Brown's political history as a belligerent exhorter of a violent, shooting revolution against the American government. Brown's party threatened to seize power, Soviet-fashion, with brutal contempt for the civil rights of all citizens who might fight against "workers" armed with guns. This was the proclaimed program of Brown's revolutionary policy committee of the Socialist Party. It has never been abandoned. Not one person concerned in this affair, neither Brown, Dubinsky, Jay Lovestone, the old chief of the American Communist Party, nor De Witt Wallace, the editor and principal owner of the Digest, has challenged a word of this record.

Wallace whipped away to Europe where his magazine managed to get a foothold in Spain last winter after General Franco's government had kept it waiting on probation for a long time, suspecting something like the truth which I have been presenting. Wallace, like Dubinsky, is branching out all over the world, publishing in many languages. The Dubinsky conspiracy, invariably presented on the guise of a "democratic" defense against the spread of Soviet communism, would not be cordially received in Spain and I doubt that the Digest will be able to convince the Spanish government that it published the ballyhoo for Brown's project all over Europe in an innocent belief that this was simply a fight against communism.

Many readers wrote to the Reader's Digest demanding an explanation. All who have taken the trouble to pass on to me the replies which they received have included therewith copies of a letter from Francis A. Henson, direcor of education and political action of the United Auto Workers of the A.F. of L., which the Digest sent to them. This union is a racket which recently issued a charter to a New York racketeer with a criminal record authorizing him to prey on taxidrivers and on the public in the guise of a union.

Henson is an old-time associate of Brown in the executive committee of the Revolutionary Policy Committee. He is a typical sedentary parasite with a flagrant record of activity in many notorious Communist fronts.

He employs the credentials of an international secretary of the YMCA and as such turned up on the campus of Pennsylvania State College where he ran into a fight with the Pennsylvania Department of the American Legion. Henson began meddling at Penn State in 1933, a little while before his name showed up on the masthead of the revolutionary Socialist Review, whose publication office, by the way, was given as 1042 Louisa street, Memphis. He was back again at Penn State as recently as last June.

In the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities Henson is listed as secretary of the American League Against War and Fascism and executive secretary of the American League for Peace and Democracy, both officially identified as Communist fronts. In each case his co-secretary was listed as Donald Henderson, whom the committee described as a "publicly avowed Communist party member." Henson is charged further with endorsing the American Youth Act, a project of the American Youth Congress, a Communist front led by Eleanor Roosevelt's friend, Joe Lash, now an editor of the New York Post, who flatly refused to help the committee expose Communists.

Last June, the Centre Daily Times, of the town of State College, Pa., said the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor was holding an "institute" at the college at which Henson now had the gall to take the guise of an anti-Communist, but deplored "McCarthyism."

The Penn State Collegian, on Nov. 9, 1933, announced that Henson was coming to speak on "What Recognition of Soviet Russia Will Mean to Us." It explained that he had toured Russia the year before. On March 1, 1935, the Collegian said Henson had said the United States must choose between Fascism and socialism, which, in the version of his particular party, was Marxian socialism imposed by armed Soviet revolution.

The Collegian quoted Henson as saying that his experience in Russia had convinced him that economic planning had worked there. The paper said Henson "felt" that it would be adopted here. He condemned as Fascism laws which compelled teachers and students to swear allegiance.

Henson's alias in Lovestone's Communist party was Liggett.

The Reader's Digest sent each reader, who inquired about my expose, a reproduction of a letter from Henson attacking me and other anti-Communists but omitting all mention of his own notorious past and Brown's. Henson praised Wallace and the Digest for its excellent reporting in the tribute to Brown, published under the by-line of one Donald Robinson.

The Digest described this and other evasive and abusive material as "an interesting commentary on Mr. Pegler and his reportorial methods."

Not one word have I received from the Digest touching on these further results of my "reportorial methods." I challenge Wallace, the Digest, Dubinsky, Brown and Henson to meet the issue in print.

Truman Attempt to Stir Racial, Religious Prejudice Will Be Remembered After Election

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 21—Far beyond Election Day, the damage done by President Truman in his misguided attempt to arouse race and religious prejudice in America will be remembered. For to accuse one political party and its nominee of religious prejudice and to ride to victory on the crest of such aroused passions would tend to approve religious bigotry as a vehicle for vote-getting in future political campaigns.

To understand the enormity of Mr. Truman's offense—and the failure of Governor Stevenson to repudiate the President's comments or to apologize for them to the American people— it is necessary to read exactly what the original utterance actually included. The occasion was a "mobilization conference" of the National Jewish Welfare Board—presumably a nonpartisan objective. Mr. Truman chose to make a political speech and, though he could not be present in person, the address, prepared in advance, was read by the assistant secretary of state for public affairs, Howland Sargeant.

In the first part of the speech, Mr. Truman explained the purpose of the meeting. He said:

"This meeting has been called to help the Jewish Welfare Board expand and intensify its welfare services to Jewish personnel in the uniform of the United States and to strengthen its efforts on behalf of the civilian Jewish communities."

Should such a meeting be utilized for a political speech? Mr. Truman had no hesitancy in doing so. He promptly launched into a partisan address, denouncing the so-called "national origins quota" system in determining immigration classifications. This system has been in the law since 1924, but never before has any President of the United States openly accused either a political party or nominee of being anti-Semitic or anti-Catholic just because some of the provisions of the law have been regarded by some groups as discriminatory. Actually the present law was sponsored by Senator McCarran, himself a devout Catholic. The National Catholic Welfare Conference approved the provisions of the law. As for most of the Jewish groups, they did not appear at the public hearings in opposition. Also 25 Democrats and 32 Republicans voted to override President Truman's veto. Governor Stevenson has endorsed the Democratic senators who did this—those up for election this year.

Senator Fulbright, Democrat, of Arkansas, voted for enactment of the McCarran Law, and he is helping to manage Governor Stevenson's campaign. Senator MacFarland of Arizona, the Democratic party's leader in the Senate, voted for the McCarran bill and to override the Truman veto. Are they both exempt from the Truman denunciation?

Knowing all this not to be a party issue, Mr. Truman nevertheless declared that General Eisenhower had endorsed for re-election some Republican senators who had voted for the McCarran Law. In truth, the Republican nominee endorsed all candidates as a matter of party harmony but came out himself for a complete revision of the McCarran Law. Here follows the controversial statement by Mr. Truman:

"The Republican candidate for the presidency cannot escape responsibility for his endorsements. He has had an attack of moral blindness, for today, he is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race' although he took a leading part in liberating Europe from their domination."

Thus, in effect, Mr. Truman called General Eisenhower pro-Nazi and in another part of his speech he added: "Anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism, and anti-foreignism grow only in concealment. They have hidden themselves within the Republican party for years."

This paragraph will go down in history as a "boner" not unlike that which defeated James G. Blaine in 1894 when one of his visitors in a delegation said the Democratic party was the party of "Rum, Romanism, and rebellion." Mr. Blaine didn't catch the meaning of it at the time. The remark was, however, widely publicized and is believed to have persuaded Catholics to vote as a group in that election against the Republican nominee, who lost.

It could work in reverse. For the Jews of American do not wish to be catalogued as all voting for one party and neither do the Catholics. Groups which are in the minority have learned over the years to vote as Americans rather than as class-conscious religionists. There are in America many hidden anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic influences and, like the mischief-makers among Communists, they often play one group against the other and start such attacks in behalf of the very candidate they want to see beaten. Thus in the preconvention campaign there were attacks by anti-Semitic groups, many of them anonymous, which accused General Eisenhower of being pro-Jewish. His name was declared by them to be Jewish, although there wasn't the slightest foundation in fact for such a statement.

What President Truman has done is to feed the anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic forces in America more ammunition than they have been fed for decades. After the election is over, in the event that Governor Stevenson wins, the tirades will take on another complexion—Democrats will be assailed as anti-Protestant and pro-Jewish. This is the kind of thing Mr. Truman, as President of the United States and as an experienced hand in politics, should have known. But he chose not to discuss the McCarran Law in an objective sense—there have been many good arguments made against its provisions—but to campaign on it in a voice of passion and religious prejudice openly seeking to gain votes for the Democratic ticket.

Down the line, where the whispering thrives in a national political campaign, the poison uttered by Mr. Truman will spread and the net result after election will be to start a wave of religious and racial bigotry—especially if the Republicans lose the election. Mr. Truman denies he called General Eisenhower "anti-Catholic" or "anti-Jewish," but he cannot deny the quotation officially issued by the White House and quoted above which says plainly that the Republican nominee "is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race.'" That's pretty vicious language and Mr. Truman, who has at times apologized to those whom he wronged—the marines, for example—owes General Eisenhower an apology and also an apology not only to the Republican party but to the 25 Democratic senators who voted for the McCarran Law. They certainly do not by their votes mean to "accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race'," which, of course, is German Nazism.

Incidentally, when the McCarran bill went to the White House, it was endorsed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Department of Justice, the visa and passport division of the Department of State and by Central Intelligence Agency. Two-thirds of both Houses of Congress voted to override Mr. Truman's veto of the bill.

I hope General Eisenhower is available. He is the kind of a liberal with whom we could win, both nationally and locally."

Is Eisenhower less liberal in 1952 than he was in 1948? Arvey tried hard to get Eisenhower to run as a Democrat, which is his right. No man could have been more excessive in his praise. He said:

"Our advocacy of General Dwight D. Eisenhower for President of the United States developed from unmistakable indications that the people of this country wanted him to serve as President at this time. The people, regardless of political persuasion, obviously deem General Eisenhower to be peculiarly fitted to unite the nation and the world to the end that a lasting peace might be achieved. . . ."

But let us come closer. The United Press reported that Senator Paul Douglas stated on March 17, 1951, he wanted Eisenhower for President. He advocated as late as January 9, 1952, that both parties should nominate Eisenhower. What happened between January and July 1952 for Senator Douglas to have changed his mind about Eisenhower the man? Nothing could have happened, except that Eisenhower chose to run as a Republican and not as a Democrat. There was no change in his character, his appearance, his service to the nation, his ideas, his beliefs during those six months.

Yet, Senator Paul Douglas in January wanted both parties to nominate Eisenhower but after July opposed his election in favor of a man whose nomination he did not support until there was no alternative. It would be interesting if Paul Douglas explained what happened between January and July 1952 to effect so marked a change.

I have before me a volume of quotations from Democrats on the subject of Eisenhower. He must wonder why they now even doubt his right to his historical position of commander of our armies in World War II and commander and organizer of NATO. Surely, that cannot be taken from him even during this dirty campaign, for which many men will be ashamed when it is over.

The real answer is that in this country a Presidential campaign has steadily degenerated. Candidates neither project nor defend issues; they neither support nor oppose principles of life, nor of national well-being. They just call each other names like Little boys sticking their tongues out at each other.

The smears against Richard Nixon, for instance, are outstanding examples of this sort of cheapness. For some unknown reason, the Democrats call him an anti-Semite. Whoever calls him that is a liar. Yet, it is being done every day. Maybe it is being done because he helped to send Alger Hiss to prison. Who knows what absurdities lurk in the irresponsible minds of name-calling politicians?

That Body of Yours

DRY FORM OF CATARRH

One of the most embarrassing and distressing ailments of mankind is the third or dry form of catarrh in which the lining of the nose and of the adjoining sinuses becomes inflamed, dries into scabs and these scabs have a terribly disagreeable odor. The disease is called ozena.

Various methods of treating ozena, including the use of the drug prostigmin, sometimes called neostigmine, are available. This drug helps many cases as does also sex gland extracts, as there is a very definite relationship between the nose and the sex glands.

In Minerva Medicine, Turin, Dr. G. Finocchi reports his results obtained by use of chlorophyll in the treatment of ozena. "Three patients, with ozena at the initial or early stage, and seven in whom the disease had extended to the back of the throat causing headaches, wasting of bone, formation of scabs and the characteristic unpleasant odor, were treated with chlorophyll. A sponge saturated with a 0.5 per cent istonic solution of chlorophyll or a 1 per cent chlorophyll ointment was applied to the lining (mucous membrane) of the nose daily for two to three hours. Within a few days the bad odor disappeared, scabs and headaches decreased, and the mucous membrane acquired a deeper color.

When the treatment was interrupted for 10 or more days, ozena reappeared rapidly. Elimination or disappearance of the odor was permanent while the chlorophyll ointment or large doses of a powder obtained from the isotonic solution weer appllied every two days.

Dr. Finocchi does not claim that chlorophyll cures ozena; it neutralizes the offensive odor which means much to the happiness and morale of the patient as the odor of ozena makes it practically impossible for the patient to mix with others.

The above will be good news for ozena patients who have been under the care of nose and throat specialists and found they had allowed the disease to spread beyond the ability of these specialists to give them relief.

In former articles I have written about the good results obtained with prostigmin (neostigmine) and sex extract. I am, therefore, making known the fact that this terrible odor can be made to disappear by use of chlorophyll.

"Man, Here's One for the Book!"

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have been trying to expose the new yellow journalism of several pretentious monthly magazines, including Redbook, McCall's, the Ladies' Home Journal and the China-Boy Luce Weeklies, Time and Life. Some of the sly editorial tendencies which the knowing eye can detect in these expensive slicks are important lessons in the education of a public which long ago formed a gullible habit of believing that the "big" magazines were above that sort of thing. However, pompous publications, being after all but the works of men, are often victims of the ethical ills that afflict the ink-stained wretches of the daily press. The public "acceptance" of their political propaganda, done in the guise of aloof treatment of topics beneath their ordinary notice, undoubtedly has done considerable damage.

I call attention as earnestly as I can to the strange performance of that demure and sanctimonious little hypodermic called "Reader's Digest," in its job of ballyhoo for Irving Brown, the ambassador-at-large in Europe of David Dubinsky's union of poverty-level American needleworkers and by the national headquarters of the American Federation of Labor. I have exposed Brown's political history as a belligerent exhorter of a violent, shooting revolution against the American government. Brown's party threatened to seize power, Soviet-fashion, with brutal contempt for the civil rights of all citizens who might fight against "workers" armed with guns. This was the proclaimed program of Brown's revolutionary policy committee of the Socialist Party. It has never been abandoned. Not one person concerned in this affair, neither Brown, Dubinsky, Jay Lovestone, the old chief of the American Communist Party, nor De Witt Wallace, the editor and principal owner of the Digest, has challenged a word of this record.

Wallace whipped away to Europe where his magazine managed to get a foothold in Spain last winter after General Franco's government had kept it waiting on probation for a long time, suspecting something like the truth which I have been presenting. Wallace, like Dubinsky, is branching out all over the world, publishing in many languages. The Dubinsky conspiracy, invariably presented on the guise of a "democratic" defense against the spread of Soviet communism, would not be cordially received in Spain and I doubt that the Digest will be able to convince the Spanish government that it published the ballyhoo for Brown's project all over Europe in an innocent belief that this was simply a fight against communism.

Many readers wrote to the Reader's Digest demanding an explanation. All who have taken the trouble to pass on to me the replies which they received have included therewith copies of a letter from Francis A. Henson, direcor of education and political action of the United Auto Workers of the A.F. of L., which the Digest sent to them. This union is a racket which recently issued a charter to a New York racketeer with a criminal record authorizing him to prey on taxidrivers and on the public in the guise of a union.

Henson is an old-time associate of Brown in the executive committee of the Revolutionary Policy Committee. He is a typical sedentary parasite with a flagrant record of activity in many notorious Communist fronts.

He employs the credentials of an international secretary of the YMCA and as such turned up on the campus of Pennsylvania State College where he ran into a fight with the Pennsylvania Department of the American Legion. Henson began meddling at Penn State in 1933, a little while before his name showed up on the masthead of the revolutionary Socialist Review, whose publication office, by the way, was given as 1042 Louisa street, Memphis. He was back again at Penn State as recently as last June.

In the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities Henson is listed as secretary of the American League Against War and Fascism and executive secretary of the American League for Peace and Democracy, both officially identified as Communist fronts. In each case his co-secretary was listed as Donald Henderson, whom the committee described as a "publicly avowed Communist party member." Henson is charged further with endorsing the American Youth Act, a project of the American Youth Congress, a Communist front led by Eleanor Roosevelt's friend, Joe Lash, now an editor of the New York Post, who flatly refused to help the committee expose Communists.

Last June, the Centre Daily Times, of the town of State College, Pa., said the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor was holding an "institute" at the college at which Henson now had the gall to take the guise of an anti-Communist, but deplored "McCarthyism."

The Penn State Collegian, on Nov. 9, 1933, announced that Henson was coming to speak on "What Recognition of Soviet Russia Will Mean to Us." It explained that he had toured Russia the year before. On March 1, 1935, the Collegian said Henson had said the United States must choose between Fascism and socialism, which, in the version of his particular party, was Marxian socialism imposed by armed Soviet revolution.

The Collegian quoted Henson as saying that his experience in Russia had convinced him that economic planning had worked there. The paper said Henson "felt" that it would be adopted here. He condemned as Fascism laws which compelled teachers and students to swear allegiance.

Henson's alias in Lovestone's Communist party was Liggett.

The Reader's Digest sent each reader, who inquired about my expose, a reproduction of a letter from Henson attacking me and other anti-Communists but omitting all mention of his own notorious past and Brown's. Henson praised Wallace and the Digest for its excellent reporting in the tribute to Brown, published under the by-line of one Donald Robinson.

The Digest described this and other evasive and abusive material as "an interesting commentary on Mr. Pegler and his reportorial methods."

Not one word have I received from the Digest touching on these further results of my "reportorial methods." I challenge Wallace, the Digest, Dubinsky, Brown and Henson to meet the issue in print.

Truman Attempt to Stir Racial, Religious Prejudice Will Be Remembered After Election

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 21—Far beyond Election Day, the damage done by President Truman in his misguided attempt to arouse race and religious prejudice in America will be remembered. For to accuse one political party and its nominee of religious prejudice and to ride to victory on the crest of such aroused passions would tend to approve religious bigotry as a vehicle for vote-getting in future political campaigns.

To understand the enormity of Mr. Truman's offense—and the failure of Governor Stevenson to repudiate the President's comments or to apologize for them to the American people— it is necessary to read exactly what the original utterance actually included. The occasion was a "mobilization conference" of the National Jewish Welfare Board—presumably a nonpartisan objective. Mr. Truman chose to make a political speech and, though he could not be present in person, the address, prepared in advance, was read by the assistant secretary of state for public affairs, Howland Sargeant.

In the first part of the speech, Mr. Truman explained the purpose of the meeting. He said:

"This meeting has been called to help the Jewish Welfare Board expand and intensify its welfare services to Jewish personnel in the uniform of the United States and to strengthen its efforts on behalf of the civilian Jewish communities."

Should such a meeting be utilized for a political speech? Mr. Truman had no hesitancy in doing so. He promptly launched into a partisan address, denouncing the so-called "national origins quota" system in determining immigration classifications. This system has been in the law since 1924, but never before has any President of the United States openly accused either a political party or nominee of being anti-Semitic or anti-Catholic just because some of the provisions of the law have been regarded by some groups as discriminatory. Actually the present law was sponsored by Senator McCarran, himself a devout Catholic. The National Catholic Welfare Conference approved the provisions of the law. As for most of the Jewish groups, they did not appear at the public hearings in opposition. Also 25 Democrats and 32 Republicans voted to override President Truman's veto. Governor Stevenson has endorsed the Democratic senators who did this—those up for election this year.

Senator Fulbright, Democrat, of Arkansas, voted for enactment of the McCarran Law, and he is helping to manage Governor Stevenson's campaign. Senator MacFarland of Arizona, the Democratic party's leader in the Senate, voted for the McCarran bill and to override the Truman veto. Are they both exempt from the Truman denunciation?

Knowing all this not to be a party issue, Mr. Truman nevertheless declared that General Eisenhower had endorsed for re-election some Republican senators who had voted for the McCarran Law. In truth, the Republican nominee endorsed all candidates as a matter of party harmony but came out himself for a complete revision of the McCarran Law. Here follows the controversial statement by Mr. Truman:

"The Republican candidate for the presidency cannot escape responsibility for his endorsements. He has had an attack of moral blindness, for today, he is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race' although he took a leading part in liberating Europe from their domination."

Thus, in effect, Mr. Truman called General Eisenhower pro-Nazi and in another part of his speech he added: "Anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism, and anti-foreignism grow only in concealment. They have hidden themselves within the Republican party for years."

This paragraph will go down in history as a "boner" not unlike that which defeated James G. Blaine in 1894 when one of his visitors in a delegation said the Democratic party was the party of "Rum, Romanism, and rebellion." Mr. Blaine didn't catch the meaning of it at the time. The remark was, however, widely publicized and is believed to have persuaded Catholics to vote as a group in that election against the Republican nominee, who lost.

It could work in reverse. For the Jews of American do not wish to be catalogued as all voting for one party and neither do the Catholics. Groups which are in the minority have learned over the years to vote as Americans rather than as class-conscious religionists. There are in America many hidden anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic influences and, like the mischief-makers among Communists, they often play one group against the other and start such attacks in behalf of the very candidate they want to see beaten. Thus in the preconvention campaign there were attacks by anti-Semitic groups, many of them anonymous, which accused General Eisenhower of being pro-Jewish. His name was declared by them to be Jewish, although there wasn't the slightest foundation in fact for such a statement.

What President Truman has done is to feed the anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic forces in America more ammunition than they have been fed for decades. After the election is over, in the event that Governor Stevenson wins, the tirades will take on another complexion—Democrats will be assailed as anti-Protestant and pro-Jewish. This is the kind of thing Mr. Truman, as President of the United States and as an experienced hand in politics, should have known. But he chose not to discuss the McCarran Law in an objective sense—there have been many good arguments made against its provisions—but to campaign on it in a voice of passion and religious prejudice openly seeking to gain votes for the Democratic ticket.

Down the line, where the whispering thrives in a national political campaign, the poison uttered by Mr. Truman will spread and the net result after election will be to start a wave of religious and racial bigotry—especially if the Republicans lose the election. Mr. Truman denies he called General Eisenhower "anti-Catholic" or "anti-Jewish," but he cannot deny the quotation officially issued by the White House and quoted above which says plainly that the Republican nominee "is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race.'" That's pretty vicious language and Mr. Truman, who has at times apologized to those whom he wronged—the marines, for example—owes General Eisenhower an apology and also an apology not only to the Republican party but to the 25 Democratic senators who voted for the McCarran Law. They certainly do not by their votes mean to "accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race'," which, of course, is German Nazism.

Incidentally, when the McCarran bill went to the White House, it was endorsed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Department of Justice, the visa and passport division of the Department of State and by Central Intelligence Agency. Two-thirds of both Houses of Congress voted to override Mr. Truman's veto of the bill.

Dykstra Deplores

maintains that fundamental issues of national policy and international justice can be minimized or forgotten because "you never had it so good." The world may be in flames and many loved ones closer to the flames than we, but don't let it bother us in Texas or Massachusetts or Ulster county for we "never had it so good." Reduced to the absurd it is the kind of argument that would allow a Luciano or a Capone in his heyday to rationalize his wrongs as being right because he "never had it so good before." It is the old casuistry that the ends justify the means—and particularly so, if you do not look too closely at the ends and analyze what you've got.

But opinions on such matters may be better left to those who understand them better than I.

The President's talks of yesterday involved themselves in a type of vitriolic personality attack that can hardly be surpassed in modern politics, but again, opinions on that may best be left to those who make the rules of etiquette and social decency.

What occasions my writing is neither of these things. Rather, it comes out of what Mr. Truman did in Boston when he made his allusion to Oliver Cromwell's crusade in England in 1650 and his reference to the Alfred Smith-Herbert Hoover election of 1928. It is apparent, even at a passing glance, that in that city of Boston, the President was trying, for the most obvious reasons, to play on the religious predilections of the people and to raise the ogre of religious animosity for the cause of party politics. It is surely absolutely clear to anybody that when Mr. Eisenhower in September chose to liken his "crusade" to Oliver Cromwell's of England, the last thing on earth he intended to do was to liken himself to Cromwell as a militant anti-Roman Catholic. It was Cromwell's tireless energy, his enthusiasm and determination that Eisenhower was looking at and thinking of, but in Boston it might pay the opposition to give the uglier reading to it. By the same token, the carefully maneuvered reference to the Hoover-Smith election, dragged in "by it's coattails" completely out of context to any present issue was a wild attempt at an association of men and parties that might use religious differences in that city for political advantage. What Mr. Truman did I do not think can rightly be left to go into the past un-analyzed. Of course, the charges that were made by tincture and inuendo yesterday in Boston were senseless. The speaker himself knew that there was no validity in them. But it was a "calculated risk" Mr. Truman took to "make a play" in Boston in the hope that not too much attention would be paid to it in areas where its spread would promise less advantage. I am writing only because I think it is unfortunately necessary to do whatever any of us can to demonstrate to any politician the error of such "playing" with anyone's religion.

There are deep and abiding differences between Protestants and Roman Catholics. It is conceivable that at some time or under some circumstances, those differences could make public issue. I know that many of us in both great sections of Christendom earnestly pray that such time or such circumstances never come. But for a man in high office (or any office) to try to manufacture differences where they do not exist; for a man by allusion and inuendo to contort and disfigure the sincere faith of people, whether they be Catholic or Protestant; for a man to try to get votes by opening old wounds and resurrecting past religious animosities; for a man to openly and unashamedly invite people to use their religious differences to make political decisions when their religious differences, by the farthest reach of imagination, cannot touch the political issues involved; for a man to do that is, at once, as sorry and shabby and dangerous a thing as can happen in American public life.

Yesterday in Boston, our President tried to turn the humble and sincere Catholic faith of many of his hearers into a wicked mean tool of prejudice. By a trick, he tried to change the Prophet's "plough share" back into the "sword." Many of us who are devoted to religion, whether it be Protestant or Catholic or Jewish find ourselves drawn into the faith, partly because we have sense of the need for the Hand greater than our own to redeem us from the blind ignorant prejudices that are so much a part of human nature. What a travesty it is then, when we see men who would try to change that which we use to deliver us from prejudice into the machine for creating it!

Is it good politics to do it? That is, will it get some votes? In the final counting I do not think that it will get or keep a single vote, but there is that which it will do. The maneuverings of vote-seeking politicians can be the devil's own hand to sow heartache and discord in the life of religious America — and so, in the whole body of our society.

I have a number of good friends who are Roman Catholic. Some are clergymen and many are laymen, and I think I can say that we all deplore the kind of thing that was tried yesterday in Boston. We admire each other. We like each other and are happy living with each other. We want it that way and while we have earnest differences we revolt against any outsider who attempts to remind us of our differences and set us against each other—especially for political reasons. The separation of church and state has become doctrine in our American way of life. Many of us no doubt feel that that principle has some of the weaknesses that all sweeping generalizations are bound to have. As the state is alive, so the church is alive and those who are devoted to the welfare of both know that to talk as if the church and the state had nothing to say to each other and nothing to do with each other is stupid. Wherever religious belief touches human government, it is no doubt right that we hear of it, and think about it, and make decision in terms of it—but beware of the men who from the level of the state try to use the church and the faith of its people for their own advantage.

And so as Protestants and Roman Catholics, we would say to the President and to everybody in either party; if you have an issue that touches the religious faith of the people speak about it to us, but otherwise, for God's sake, for our nation's sake—and for your own sake, leave us alone. Beware the judgment on us all, if you use us as pawns in a game you play.

Sincerely yours,
THE REV. J. DEAN DYKSTRA

PARTY PROBLEMS — Above Newsmap shows what each political party must do to get 266 electoral votes and thereby win the presidency. Offhand it appears that the GOP faces a difficult task, starting with only 12 electoral votes from states which normally vote Republican. Their problem can be eased if they crack the "Solid South" which last voted Republican in 1928.

Co-operative Continues Milkshed Criticism

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—The Eastern Milk Producers Co-operative is expected to continue criticizing the administration of the New York metropolitan milkshed next week at three mass meetings of farmers.

The meetings were announced yesterday. They will be held at Utica Oct. 27, Montrose, Pa., Oct. 28 and Franklinville, Oct. 29.

The announced topics indicated all the speakers would urge changes in the present six-state metropolitan marketing arrangement.

Speakers will include Dr. Harry P. Young, milk consultant for eastern; John C. York, economist for the co-operative; Democratic Assemblyman Sharon J. Mauhs of Cobleskill, and Glen W. Ely, field representative of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

Young charged recently that there was "influence peddling" and "dictatorship" in administration of the federal-state marketing order.

Dr. C. J. Blanford, market administrator, replied by calling for a report from any one who knew of a case of lack of integrity in his staff.

GreenportFireman Pleads Innocent

Hudson, Oct. 21 (AP) — Herbert Kuhner, 37, first assistant fire chief of the town of Greenport, has pleaded innocent to charges of criminal negligence and reckless driving in connection with a fatal highway accident last April.

A truck driven by Kuhner and an automobile operated by John Tillson of Greenport collided head-on April 4. Tillson died as a result of injuries.

Kuhner and Fire Chief Naglig were responding to a mutual aid fire call from the town of Livingston.

No date was set for the trial.

Urges Common Front

Taipeh, Oct. 21 (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek today urged East and West to form a common front against communism. Unless they do, he said, the East will fall to Soviet imperialism and after that the whole world. By the term "East," he explained he meant the Far East and Middle East. The Chinese Nationalist Generalissimo expressed his views at a general news conference, open to all foreign correspondents and the local press—first of its kind he has ever given on Formosa. Chiang said the peoples of Asia, on the perimeter of the Iron Curtain, "should understand that, if the Russian Communist empire is not eliminated, the first to fall will be countries of the East—(then) the whole world will fall."

1. NEW YORK CENTRAL PAYS school taxes on its tracks, bridges, stations and yards . . . just as you do on your home or business property. In New York State, for instance, Central taxes contributed about $5,000,000 to the school budget last year. And helped keep down your school tax.

2. AND WHAT A DIFFERENCE those New York Central tax dollars make. In district after district, they mean the whole difference between an out-of-date or cramped schoolhouse . . . and the kind of roomy, sunny, fireproof modern building you want for your youngsters.

Dykstra Deplores

maintains that fundamental issues of national policy and international justice can be minimized or forgotten because "you never had it so good." The world may be in flames and many loved ones closer to the flames than we, but don't let it bother us in Texas or Massachusetts or Ulster county for we "never had it so good." Reduced to the absurd it is the kind of argument that would allow a Luciano or a Capone in his heyday to rationalize his wrongs as being right because he "never had it so good before." It is the old casuistry that the ends justify the means—and particularly so, if you do not look too closely at the ends and analyze what you've got.

But opinions on such matters may be better left to those who understand them better than I.

The President's talks of yesterday involved themselves in a type of vitriolic personality attack that can hardly be surpassed in modern politics, but again, opinions on that may best be left to those who make the rules of etiquette and social decency.

What occasions my writing is neither of these things. Rather, it comes out of what Mr. Truman did in Boston when he made his allusion to Oliver Cromwell's crusade in England in 1650 and his reference to the Alfred Smith-Herbert Hoover election of 1928. It is apparent, even at a passing glance, that in that city of Boston, the President was trying, for the most-obvious reasons, to play on the religious predilections of the people and to raise the ogre of religious animosity for the cause of party politics. It is surely absolutely clear to anybody that when Mr. Eisenhower in September chose to liken his "crusade" to Oliver Cromwell's of England, the last thing on earth he intended to do was to liken himself to Cromwell as a militant anti-Roman Catholic. It was Cromwell's tireless energy, his enthusiasm and determination that Eisenhower was looking at and thinking of, but in Boston it might pay the opposition to give the uglier reading to it. By the same token, the carefully maneuvered reference to the Hoover-Smith election, dragged in "by it's coattails" completely out of context to any present issue was a wild attempt at an assocation of men and parties that might use religious differences in that city for political advantage. What Mr. Truman did I do not think can rightly be left to go into the past un-analyzed. Of course, the charges that were made by tincture and inuendo yesterday in Boston were senseless. The speaker himself knew that there was no validity in them. But it was a "calculated risk" Mr. Truman took to "make a play" in Boston in the hope that not too much attention would be paid to it in areas where its spread would promise less advantage. I am writing only because I think it is unfortunately necessary to do whatever any of us can to demonstrate to any politician the error of such "playing" with anyone's religion.

There are deep and abiding differences between Protestants and Roman Catholics. It is conceivable that at some time or under some circumstances, those differences could make public issue. I know that many of us in both great sections of Christendom earnestly pray that such time or such circumstances never come. But for a man in high office (or any office) to try to manufacture differences where they do not exist; for a man by allusion and inuendo to contort and disfigure the sincere faith of people, whether they be Catholic or Protestant; for a man to try to get votes by opening old wounds and resurrecting past religious animosities; for a man to openly and unashamedly invite people to use their religious differences to make political decisions when their religious differences, by the farthest reach of imagination, cannot touch the political issues involved; for a man to do that is, at once, as sorry and shabby and dangerous a thing as can happen in American public life.

Yesterday in Boston, our President tried to turn the humble and sincere Catholic faith of many of his hearers into a wicked mean tool of prejudice. By a trick, he tried to change the Prophet's "plough share" back into the "sword." Many of us who are devoted to religion, whether it be Protestant or Catholic or Jewish find ourselves drawn into the faith, partly because we have sense of the need for the Hand greater than our own to redeem us from the blind ignorant prejudices that are so much a part of human nature. What a travesty it is then, when we see men who would try to change that which we use to deliver us from prejudice into the machine for creating it!

Is it good politics to do it? That is, will it get some votes? In the final counting I do not think that it will get or keep a single vote, but there is that which it will do. The maneuverings of vote-seeking politicians can be the devil's own hand to sow heartache and discord in the life of religious America — and so, in the whole body of our society.

I have a number of good friends who are Roman Catholic. Some are clergymen and many are laymen, and I think I can say that we all deplore the kind of thing that was tried yesterday in Boston. We admire each other. We like each other and are happy living with each other. We want it that way and while we have earnest differences we revolt against any outsider who attempts to remind us of our differences and set us against each other—especially for political reasons. The separation of church and state has become doctrine in our American way of life. Many of us no doubt feel that that principle has some of the weaknesses that all sweeping generalizations are bound to have. As the state is alive, so the church is alive and those who are devoted to the welfare of both know that to talk as if the church and the state had nothing to say to each other and nothing to do with each other is stupid. Wherever religious belief touches human government, it is no doubt right that we hear of it, and think about it, and make decision in terms of it—but beware of the men who from the level of the state try to use the church and the faith of its people for their own advantage.

And so as Protestants and Roman Catholics, we would say to the President and to everybody in either party; if you have an issue that touches the religious faith of the people speak about it to us, but otherwise, for God's sake, for our nation's sake—and for your own sake, leave us alone. Beware the judgment on us all, if you use us as pawns in a game you play.

Sincerely yours,
THE REV. J. DEAN DYKSTRA

PARTY PROBLEMS — Above Newsmap shows what each political party must do to get 266 electoral votes and thereby win the presidency. Offhand it appears that the GOP faces a difficult task, starting with only 12 electoral votes from states which normally vote Republican. Their problem can be eased if they crack the "Solid South" which last voted Republican in 1928.

Co-operative Continues Milkshed Criticism

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—The Eastern Milk Producers Co-operative is expected to continue criticizing the administration of the New York metropolitan milkshed next week at three mass meetings of farmers.

The meetings were announced yesterday. They will be held at Utica Oct. 27, Montrose, Pa., Oct. 28 and Franklinville, Oct. 29.

The announced topics indicated all the speakers would urge changes in the present six-state metropolitan marketing arrangement.

Speakers will include Dr. Harry P. Young, milk consultant for eastern; John C. York, economist for the co-operative; Democratic Assemblyman Sharon J. Mauhs of Cobleskill, and Glen W. Ely, field representative of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

Young charged recently that there was "influence peddling" and "dictatorship" in administration of the federal-state marketing order.

Dr. C. J. Blanford, market administrator, replied by calling for a report from any one who knew of a case of lack of integrity in his staff.

Greenport Fireman Pleads Innocent

Hudson, Oct. 21 (AP) — Herbert Kuhner, 37, first assistant fire chief of the town of Greenport, has pleaded innocent to charges of criminal negligence and reckless driving in connection with a fatal highway accident last April.

Kuhner made his plea before Judge William E. J. Connor of Columbia county yesterday. He was released in $500 bail.

A truck driven by Kuhner and an automobile operated by John Tillson of Greenport collided head-on April 4. Tillson died as a result of injuries.

Kuhner and Fire Chief Naglig were responding to a mutual aid fire call from the town of Livingston.

No date was set for the trial.

Urges Common Front

Taipeh, Oct. 21 (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek today urged East and West to form a common front against communism. Unless they do, he said, the East will fall to Soviet imperialism and after that the whole world. By the term "East," he explained he meant the Far East and Middle East. The Chinese Nationalist Generalissimo expressed his views at a general news conference, open to all foreign correspondents and the local press—first of its kind he has ever given on Formosa. Chiang said the peoples of Asia, on the perimeter of the Iron Curtain, "should understand that, if the Russian Communist empire is not eliminated, the first to fall will be countries of the East—(then) the whole world will fall."

Declares Truman Fears Revelations Of U. S. 'Treason'

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey says President Truman fears to have a "clean" administration take over in Washington, and "it must be because the treason is so great he does not dare let it be rooted out."

He made the statement last night in a speech at a rally of the New York Young Republican Club.

"Otherwise," Dewey asked, "why should he call the (Alger) Hiss case a Red herring seven times?" Dewey added:

"And if it had not been for (Sen.) Richard Nixon, the Republican nominee for vice-president, this convicted traitor might well be shaping American policy for a new Munich with Stalin."

Nixon, as a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, did much to pursue the case against Hiss, former State Department official now serving time for perjury.

'To Lowest Level'

Dewey said Truman sank "to the lowest level in American history when he injected race and religion into this campaign." The governor was referring to Truman's statement of last Friday that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was "willing to accept the very practices that identify the so-called 'master race.'"

"If it is true," Dewey continued, "the Republican candidate for president is guilty of these infamous crimes—adopting the Hitler thesis of 'nordic superiority,' of being 'for the master race,'—of being anti-Catholic, anti-Jewish and anti-foreign — if it is true, then Mr. Truman was guilty of an infamous crime himself when he offered his fullest support to Gen. Eisenhower to make him president of the United States."

Truman denied in Washington yesterday that he had made any such charges against Eisenhower. The President said Republicans had distorted "the simple meaning of my words." Truman declared he actually had said that Eisenhower "cannot escape responsibility" for endorsing GOP senators who backed the McCarran Immigration Act, which the President contends discriminates against certain nationalities.

Dewey said Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee, "has not uttered one word to repudiate the infamous falsehood and character assassination uttered on his behalf by Mr. Truman."

His death, police said, may have been due to strangulation or to a heart condition for which he had been under treatment. An autopsy was scheduled for later today. Knopf was found in the shop after police went there to investigate his failure to return home last night at his usual time. His family became worried and notified police.

Report Criticizes New York Police

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A report critical of the New York city police department and recommendations for a sweeping shake-up have been made public by the Mayor's Committee on management survey.

The report was made for the committee by the Institute of Public Administration, a private agency, as a cost of $85,000. The committee, which released the report yesterday, endorsed it although some members had reservations.

Chief criticism in the survey was aimed at the Municipal Civil Service Commission. The report said the commission in screening prospective policemen waived "criminal records of wide variety, paternity proceedings and other objectionable features" in 75 per cent of the cases where they they occur.

Among Proposals

Among the recommendations were proposals for lowering the age limits for rookie policemen to 18; for creating a "police cadet" force; for reduction of the present force of 19,300 men to 18,500; and for maintenance of present base pay levels.

The report said that even if the force is cut, some 1,200 to 1,500 more officers could be placed on active patrols through the abolition of some clerical tasks and other organizational changes.

It said pay increases were not justified and that present scales are higher than those for police forces elsewhere and compare favorably with the income of other new York wage-earners.

Maximum patrolman's pay is now $5,250 a year.

John E. Carton, president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, said the report should be rejected and the $85,000 should not be paid the institute. He said the report incorrectly implied that policemen are overpaid. He added that it menaces the force's efficiency and morale.

Cow Infertility Studied

Raleigh, N. C., (AP)—The North Carolina State College school of agriculture is conducting experiments aimed at reducing infertility in cows. Dr. J. Clark Osborne of the department of animal industry says that infertile cows cost the American cattle industry 500 million dollars a year in lost calves and reduced milk production. A bacterial disease, vibriosis, caused by the germ vibrio fetus, causes affected cows to abort during the first six months of gestation or give birth to weak calves. While treatment of infected cows has met with considerable success, no entirely effective preventative has yet been developed, says Osborne. College scientists are working to develop a vaccine to control the disease.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Tourney Is the Place For Superior Plays

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

A bridge match for the championship of the world will take place next week in New York, and bridge players all over the world will have their attention riveted on the playing tricks and the tricky plays that are executed at the two tables.

When this hand was played in last year's world championship, the American pair held the North-South cards at the first table. The South player was George Rapee, who will again be a member of the American team next week.

East won the first trick with the ace of clubs and returned the jack of clubs, which Rapee won with the king. With seven sure diamond tricks and one club, declarer now needed one additional trick in order to make his contract.

Rapee immediately led the jack of spades from his hand. East considered this trick briefly and finally decided not to win it. This was a mistake, to be sure, but East had no way of knowing this at the time.

Having already taken one club and one spade. Rapee now rattled off his seven diamond tricks and thus made his contract. The score for North-South was therefore plus 600 at the first table.

At the other table a European pair held the North-South cards. South won the second trick with the king of clubs and decided to run his seven diamond tricks at once.

As soon as South led his third diamond it immediately became apparent to the American defenders that declarer had seven sure diamond tricks in addition to the club that he had already won. Each defender immediately signalled his ace to indicate the correct defense.

It was therefore easy for the defenders to hold their two aces and their clubs. When declarer finished with his diamonds, the defenders were ready to take a total of two aces and three club tricks, defeating the contract.

The result at the second table was minus 100 for North-South. Hence, the American team gained 700 points on the hand by being plus 600 instead of minus 600.

WE RUN
A FREE MARKET
FOR FREE MEN

Ask any schoolboy what made the Pilgrims sail to an unknown land. He'll tell you, "They wanted to be free."

The young man who hangs out a sign "TV repairs here" is telling the world "I'm my own boss." It's another declaration of independence every day the corner druggist, the neighborhood grocer unlock their doors.

And there's another way to "go into business" for yourself. Since Washington was President, we at the New York Stock Exchange have been running a free market place for free Americans. Here, capital—the savings of a free people—is free to go to work at whatever job it chooses.

Six and a half million Americans own a piece of a business by owning shares in America's leading corporations. They are freely risking their savings in the hope of making a profit. And they are free to sell their shares at any time—and for their own good reasons.

Call these people share owners, stockholders, venture capitalists or whatever you want. They're Americans the Pilgrims would recognize.

Information about any of the hundreds of corporations on the Exchange—and how you go about becoming a share owner—is yours for the asking at the office of any member firm.

Report Criticizes New York Police

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A report critical of the New York city police department and recommendations for a sweeping shake-up have been made public by the Mayor's Committee on management survey.

The report was made for the committee by the Institute of Public Administration, a private agency, as a cost of $85,000. The committee, which released the report yesterday, endorsed it although some members had reservations.

Chief criticism in the survey was aimed at the Municipal Civil Service Commission. The report said the commission in screening prospective policemen waived "criminal records of wide variety, paternity proceedings and other objectionable features" in 75 per cent of the cases where they they occur.

Among Proposals

Among the recommendations were proposals for lowering the age limits for rookie policemen to 18; for creating a "police cadet" force; for reduction of the present force of 19,300 men to 18,500; and for maintenance of present base pay levels.

The report said that even if the force is cut, some 1,200 to 1,500 more officers could be placed on active patrols through the abolition of some clerical tasks and other organizational changes.

It said pay increases were not justified and that present scales are higher than those for police forces elsewhere and compare favorably with the income of other new York wage-earners.

Maximum patrolman's pay is now $5,250 a year.

John E. Carton, president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, said the report should be rejected and the $85,000 should not be paid the institute. He said the report incorrectly implied that policemen are overpaid. He added that it menaces the force's efficiency and morale.

Cow Infertility Studied

Raleigh, N. C., (AP)—The North Carolina State College school of agriculture is conducting experiments aimed at reducing infertility in cows. Dr. J. Clark Osborne of the department of animal industry says that infertile cows cost the American cattle industry 500 million dollars a year in lost calves and reduced milk production. A bacterial disease, vibriosis, caused by the germ vibrio fetus, causes affected cows to abort during the first six months of gestation or give birth to weak calves. While treatment of infected cows has met with considerable success, no entirely effective preventative has yet been developed, says Osborne. College scientists are working to develop a vaccine to control the disease.

Tourney Is the Place For Superior Plays

Book 41 Years Overdue

Butte, Mont. (AP) — A slow reader must have spent a lot of time on a book called "The Spenders"—it was returned to the public library 41 years overdue. D. A. Rhyner found the book in a cabin. The check-out date read Sept. 30, 1911. Rhyner figured the borrower owes $747.55 in fines. "If you can collect, I will gladly accept half," he told the library.

Jacoby on Canasta

Learn When to Freeze Pack

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"Please settle a problem on the correct method of playing," requests a Birmingham correspondent. "The opponents took the first discard pile in a game at my home the other night, and I promptly froze the pack at my next turn to play.

"My everloving wife, who happened to be my partner, practically exploded at this play. She insisted that I had picked the worst possible time to freeze the pack. "Who is right?"

This is a difficult question to answer, largely because not enough of the important facts have been given. The absence of these facts indicates clearly, however, that my correspondent isn't sure about the right time to freeze the pack. The chances are that his better half was more than half right when she said that he had picked the worst possible time to freeze the pack.

Towards the beginning of a hand you freeze the pack as an offensive measure. That is, you can confidently expect to shut the opponents out from the discard pile and to win it yourself (or you may hope for your partner to win it).

An offensive freeze of this kind is likely to be successful only when you and your partner hold more cards in your hands than the opponents hold. A good general rule to remember is that a player with many cards is almost sure to win the discard pile from a player with fewer cards, provided that the game goes on for enough turns of play.

When the opponents win the first discard pile, they usually keep more cards in their hands than you and your partner hold. In other words, the opponent who picks up the pile will usually save more than eleven cards in his hand after he has made his initial meld and his discard. If he has done so, that is the worst possible time to freeze the pack.

There are exceptions to this rule, however. Sometimes the opponent who takes the first discard pile melds so many cards that he is left with only a very small hand at the end of his meld and his discard. If so, a prompt freeze is a sound idea.

Let me repeat that the important factor is the number of cards left in the hand of your opponent. If he has more than eleven cards, you shouldn't freeze. If he has nearly eleven cards, the matter is a toss-up. If he has substantially fewer than eleven cards (say about five or six cards) you have a good freeze.

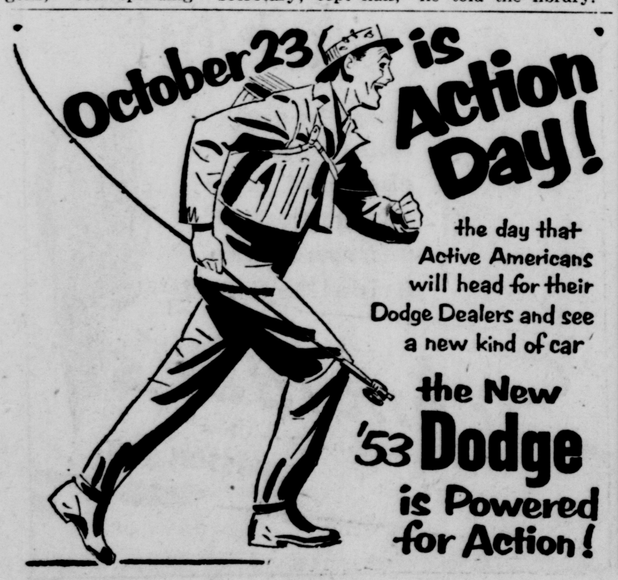

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Reds Have Train Trouble

Vienna (AP)—One thing communism in Czechoslovakia can't do is make the trains run on time. The Prague newspaper Rude Pravo recently complained that "the irregularity of trains is threatening the security of our railroads." The newspaper said 65 per cent of all trains arriving and leaving the Slovak capital of Bratislava were late. "The total loss of time of trains in and out of Bratislava is 800 minutes a day," the paper said.

Book 41 Years Overdue

Butte, Mont. (AP) — A slow reader must have spent a lot of time on a book called "The Spenders"—it was returned to the public library 41 years overdue. D. A. Rhyner found the book in a cabin. The check-out date read Sept. 30, 1911. Rhyner figured the borrower owes $747.55 in fines. "If you can collect, I will gladly accept half," he told the library.

Learn When to Freeze Pack

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"Please settle a problem on the correct method of playing," requests a Birmingham correspondent. "The opponents took the first discard pile in a game at my home the other night, and I promptly froze the pack at my next turn to play.

"My everloving wife, who happened to be my partner, practically exploded at this play. She insisted that I had picked the worst possible time to freeze the pack. "Who is right?"

This is a difficult question to answer, largely because not enough of the important facts have been given. The absence of these facts indicates clearly, however, that my correspondent isn't sure about the right time to freeze the pack. The chances are that his better half was more than half right when she said that he had picked the worst possible time to freeze the pack.

Towards the beginning of a hand you freeze the pack as an offensive measure. That is, you can confidently expect to shut the opponents out from the discard pile and to win it yourself (or you may hope for your partner to win it).

An offensive freeze of this kind is likely to be successful only when you and your partner hold more cards in your hands than the opponents hold. A good general rule to remember is that a player with many cards is almost sure to win the discard pile from a player with fewer cards, provided that the game goes on for enough turns of play.

When the opponents win the first discard pile, they usually keep more cards in their hands than you and your partner hold. In other words, the opponent who picks up the pile will usually save more than eleven cards in his hand after he has made his initial meld and his discard. If he has done so, that is the worst possible time to freeze the pack.

There are exceptions to this rule, however. Sometimes the opponent who takes the first discard pile melds so many cards that he is left with only a very small hand at the end of his meld and his discard. If so, a prompt freeze is a sound idea.

Let me repeat that the important factor is the number of cards left in the hand of your opponent. If he has more than eleven cards, you shouldn't freeze. If he has nearly eleven cards, the matter is a toss-up. If he has substantially fewer than eleven cards (say about five or six cards) you have a good freeze.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Reds Have Train Trouble

Vienna (AP)—One thing communism in Czechoslovakia can't do is make the trains run on time. The Prague newspaper Rude Pravo recently complained that "the irregularity of trains is threatening the security of our railroads." The newspaper said 65 per cent of all trains arriving and leaving the Slovak capital of Bratislava were late. "The total loss of time of trains in and out of Bratislava is 800 minutes a day," the paper said.

"Born in St. Germain-en-Laye, France, on August 22, 1862, Debussy, founder of the school of impressions in music, died in Paris on March 26, 1918," Mrs. Decker told her listeners. She continued, "influenced by the contemporary painters, the first impressionists, Debussy did for music what they did for painting; breaking down the barriers of form. His influence on modern music has been enormous."

Recordings of Debussy compositions were played. At the tea following the meeting, Mrs. Richard Morse and Mrs. Ralph Harper were hostesses. Mrs. William Petry poured.

If indifference and apathy could be overcome, it would make the difference between an orderly world and war . . . there are so many misconceptions and mistaken ideas."

At the close of the meeting, a social hour was held. Mrs. Frederick Smith and Mrs. Hamilton Boyd presided at the tea table.

New York City Pupils Study History in Kingston and Hurley

Twelve eighth grade pupils, five girls and seven boys, and their teachers at the Downtown Community School, 235 East Eleventh street, arrived Friday afternoon for a weekend study of American history, in this city and Hurley. Several of the youngsters on the history field trip were accompanied by their parents.

The downtown school is a private, progressive institution operated on a cooperative basis by parents and faculty, explained Norman Studer, director of the school.

Youngsters and parents listened to Miss Katherine Millard, assistant custodian at the Senate House, as she outlined the story of the historic building which was constructed in 1676 by Colonel Wessel Ten Broeck, and told the group that the State Senate convened for the first time on September 10, 1777. Miss Millard also pointed out relics and mementoes of the Colonial era.

In an impromptu classroom on the grounds at the Senate House, the young people conveyed their interest by asking many questions.

On Saturday afternoon, the group visited the Jan Van Deusen House, Hurley, in which the Legislature met after the burning of Kingston. A highspot of this trip was the visit with the Misses Elizabeth and Cornelia DeWitt, whose great-great grandfather, Matthew Ten Eyck, built the family home in 1750. The youngsters were intrigued with the folk stories told by the DeWitt sisters, as well as the quaint Dutch expressions which had been handed down through the generations.

The entourage journeyed to Cooperstown for a visit to the Farmers Museum and returned on Sunday to visit additional places in Kingston and Hurley, before boarding automobiles for the trip back to New York.

BABY'S CHRISTENING DRESS

A mother writes: "My baby is to be christened soon and these past months I have dreamed of his being christened in a long christening dress—until last evening, the friend who is to be godmother, came to show me the christening dress she had bought! When I saw it, I was so disappointed, it was all I could do not to cry. It wasn't anything at all like the long robe I had in mind. It was just a plain white muslin dress that barely covered the baby's feet! I am writing to ask you WHAT I can do? Can I insist that this be returned and I myself supply another, or must I let the child wear the dress bought by the godmother?"

In the countless number of christenings that I have known about personally I have never before heard of a godmother who considered the providing of the christening dress her responsibility. However, the fact that the impulse of your baby's godmother was such a generous one makes it difficult—in fact, impossible—to tell her that you do not find her kindness pleasing. In other words, the situation obliges you to choose between dressing your baby as you please at the cost of his godmother's interest or preserving her friendship at the brief disappointment of having him unbecomingly dressed for a conspicuous but very brief period of time.

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been invited to a fiftieth wedding anniversary and I am at a loss as to know what to give for a present. I know the fiftieth year is gold but I can't possibly afford to give anything in real gold.

Answer: Anything with gold embroidery or braid or paint or gilt on it. Or for that matter, anything that is yellow, is suitable.

One Present Sufficient

Dear Mrs. Post: I am to be a bridesmaid at my cousin's wedding. My parents are giving the bride-to-be a very valuable wedding present. May my name be included with the others or is it necessary—as a member of the bridal party—to give a separate gift?

Answer: Under the circumstances you describe your name may certainly be added to those of your parents.

It was reported by Mrs. Harold Davis, membership chairman, that the Newcomers Club was meeting on the first and third Tuesdays of each month at 1:30 p. m. She urged all members to submit names of new residents, who will be contacted by the committee.

Miss Sylvia Relyea, public affairs chairman, announced that her group is continuing its study of the United Nations. The next meeting on Monday, Oct. 27, will be an open one. A motion picture depicting the UN will be shown and discussed.

Reports pertaining to the sketch, metalcraft and glovemaking classes were presented by Miss Marcia Clark. Registrations for knitting and ceramics classes are still being taken. The classes will begin within the next two weeks.

She also described the Y-teen Chocolate for Christmast project. The young people are collecting chocolates to be sent to the YWCA in the Philippines for distribution at Christmas time.

Before adjourning, the board adopted a resolution, copy of which has been sent to the family of Bart C. Van Ingen, who prior to his recent death had been a valued trustee.

"A personal touch is needed," the speaker continued, "to make the different nations understand that the organization belongs to them. If indifference and apathy could be overcome, it would make the difference between an orderly world and war . . . there are so many misconceptions and mistaken ideas."

At the close of the meeting, a social hour was held. Mrs. Frederick Smith and Mrs. Hamilton Boyd presided at the tea table.

New York City Pupils Study History in Kingston and Hurley

Twelve eighth grade pupils, five girls and seven boys, and their teachers at the Downtown Community School, 235 East Eleventh street, arrived Friday afternoon for a weekend study of American history, in this city and Hurley. Several of the youngsters on the history field trip were accompanied by their parents.

The downtown school is a private, progressive institution operated on a cooperative basis by parents and faculty, explained Norman Studer, director of the school.

Youngsters and parents listened to Miss Katherine Millard, assistant custodian at the Senate House, as she outlined the story of the historic building which was constructed in 1676 by Colonel Wessel Ten Broeck, and told the group that the State Senate convened for the first time on September 10, 1777. Miss Millard also pointed out relics and mementoes of the Colonial era.

In an impromptu classroom on the grounds at the Senate House, the young people conveyed their interest by asking many questions.

On Saturday afternoon, the group visited the Jan Van Deusen House, Hurley, in which the Legislature met after the burning of Kingston. A highspot of this trip was the visit with the Misses Elizabeth and Cornelia DeWitt, whose great-great grandfather, Matthew Ten Eyck, built the family home in 1750. The youngsters were intrigued with the folk stories told by the DeWitt sisters, as well as the quaint Dutch expressions which had been handed down through the generations.

The entourage journeyed to Cooperstown for a visit to the Farmers Museum and returned on Sunday to visit additional places in Kingston and Hurley, before boarding automobiles for the trip back to New York.

BABY'S CHRISTENING DRESS

A mother writes: "My baby is to be christened soon and these past months I have dreamed of his being christened in a long christening dress—until last evening, the friend who is to be godmother, came to show me the christening dress she had bought! When I saw it, I was so disappointed, it was all I could do not to cry. It wasn't anything at all like the long robe I had in mind. It was just a plain white muslin dress that barely covered the baby's feet! I am writing to ask you WHAT I can do? Can I insist that this be returned and I myself supply another, or must I let the child wear the dress bought by the godmother?"

In the countless number of christenings that I have known about personally I have never before heard of a godmother who considered the providing of the christening dress her responsibility. However, the fact that the impulse of your baby's godmother was such a generous one makes it difficult—in fact, impossible—to tell her that you do not find her kindness pleasing. In other words, the situation obliges you to choose between dressing your baby as you please at the cost of his godmother's interest or preserving her friendship at the brief disappointment of having him unbecomingly dressed for a conspicuous but very brief period of time.

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been invited to a fiftieth wedding anniversary and I am at a loss as to know what to give for a present. I know the fiftieth year is gold but I can't possibly afford to give anything in real gold.

Answer: Anything with gold embroidery or braid or paint or gilt on it. Or for that matter, anything that is yellow, is suitable.

One Present Sufficient

Dear Mrs. Post: I am to be a bridesmaid at my cousin's wedding. My parents are giving the bride-to-be a very valuable wedding present. May my name be included with the others or is it necessary—as a member of the bridal party—to give a separate gift?

Answer: Under the circumstances you describe your name may certainly be added to those of your parents.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Twins Are Identical, Even to Their Woes

Beverly Hills, Calif., Oct. 21 (AP) — Trouble just naturally comes double to Charlotte and Georgia Steeves. They are identical twins.

The 22-year-olds were decorating a tractor for the homecoming parade of the University of California at Los Angeles. They were in the earth-moving tractor's scoop, which somehow went into gear and tossed them eight feet to the ground.

Both girls suffered the same injury—fractures of the left elbow. Today both are wearing identical casts.

"Sometimes," moans Charlotte, "we think we carry this twin thing too far."

Newark Doctor Is Honored for Work With Handicapped

Dr. Henry H. Kessler, member of B'nai B'rith at Newark, N. J., is the recipient of the first annual "physician's award" to the American doctor who made the greatest contribution to the welfare and employment of the physically handicapped in this country during 1952. President Truman, who announced this new public recognition of outstanding physicians in this field each year, at the meeting here of the President's Committee for the Employment of the Physically Handicapped, said that the formal presentation of an illuminated scroll to Dr. Kessler would be made at a gathering of the American Medical Association in the near future.

Dr. Kessler, founder and medical director of the Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation, non-profit institution at West Orange, N. J., and internationally known as an orthopedic surgeon, was selected by a special medical committee, headed by Dr. Carl M. Peterson of the AMA. He is a member of the President's Committee and a past president of the International Society for the Welfare of Cripples and the National Rehabilitation Association. Dr. Kessler is the author of numerous books and articles and has been an outstanding exponent of the thesis that physically handicapped persons can conquer their disabilities and lead useful, normal lives.

He was medical director of the pioneer New Jersey State Rehabilitation Commission and has been a consultant to a number of United States government agencies, United Nations, and many foreign countries, including Great Britain, France and Israel. He is a veteran of both World Wars.

The award of Dr. Kessler is the second in two years presented to members of B'nai B'rith. A year ago President Truman presented the first plaque from the President's Committee to George Barr, member of B'nai B'rith in Chicago, himself physically handicapped, for establishing a manufacturing plant, which provides employment for some 80 persons, nearly all of whom are crippled, deaf or disabled. The award this year went to Nils Josefson, also of Chicago, which is a paraplegic and whose Paraplegics Manufacturing Company was organized by several victims of the disease, and is now employing a large number of physically handicapped persons.

Twins Are Identical, Even to Their Woes

Beverly Hills, Calif., Oct. 21 (AP) — Trouble just naturally comes double to Charlotte and Georgia Steeves. They are identical twins.

The 22-year-olds were decorating a tractor for the homecoming parade of the University of California at Los Angeles. They were in the earthmoving tractor's scoop, which somehow went into gear and tossed them eight feet to the ground.

Both girls suffered the same injury—fractures of the left elbow. Today both are wearing identical casts.

"Sometimes," moans Charlotte, "we think we carry this twin thing too far."

Newark Doctor Is Honored for Work With Handicapped

Dr. Henry H. Kessler, member of B'nai B'rith at Newark, N. J., is the recipient of the first annual "physician's award" to the American doctor who made the greatest contribution to the welfare and employment of the physically handicapped in this country during 1952. President Truman, who announced this new public recognition of outstanding physicians in this field each year, at the meeting here of the President's Committee for the Employment of the Physically Handicapped, said that the formal presentation of an illuminated scroll to Dr. Kessler would be made at a gathering of the American Medical Association in the near future.

Dr. Kessler, founder and medical director of the Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation, non-profit institution at West Orange, N. J., and internationally known as an orthopedic surgeon, was selected by a special medical committee, headed by Dr. Carl M. Peterson of the AMA. He is a member of the President's Committee and a past president of the International Society for the Welfare of Cripples and the National Rehabilitation Association. Dr. Kessler is the author of numerous books and articles and has been an outstanding exponent of the thesis that physically handicapped persons can conquer their disabilities and lead useful, normal lives.

He was medical director of the pioneer New Jersey State Rehabilitation Commission and has been a consultant to a number of United States government agencies, United Nations, and many foreign countries, including Great Britain, France and Israel. He is a veteran of both World Wars.

The award of Dr. Kessler is the second in two years presented to members of B'nai B'rith. A year ago President Truman presented the first plaque from the President's Committee to George Barr, member of B'nai B'rith in Chicago, himself physically handicapped, for establishing a manufacturing plant, which provides employment for some 80 persons, nearly all of whom are crippled, deaf or disabled. The award this year went to Nils Josefson, also of Chicago, which is a paraplegic and whose Paraplegics Manufacturing Company was organized by several victims of the disease, and is now employing a large number of physically handicapped persons.

South Koreans Not Prepared to Fight Alone, Says Rhee

New York, Oct. 21 (AP) — The New York Times said today that Korean President Syngman Rhee firmly insisted yesterday that the South Korean Army was not yet strong enough to fight alone against the Communist forces.

A Times dispatch from Seoul by George Barrett, said the 77-year-old chief of state made it clear that South Korea was looking toward a day when its own army could defend the republic, but he also made it clear he thought the time was not now.

Rhee was quoted as saying battle experience indicated it "won't take very long to train our Korean boys."

Barrett wrote that Rhee made the statement a few hours after government officials had declared the president would make no statement that could have a bearing on the presidential election in the United States.

Must Be Trained

"Dr. Rhea was asked about a statement made by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican presidential nominee, on Oct. 2 on a policy toward Korea. In that statement, the nominee said:

" 'What we must do, first of all, is to make certain that those southern Koreans, of whom there are 20 million, can be prepared to defend their own front lines.

" 'There is no sense in the United Nations, with America bearing the brunt of the thing, being constantly compelled to man those front lines. That is a job for the Koreans. We do not want Asia to feel that the white man of the west is his enemy. If there must be a war there, let it be Asians against Asians, with our support on the side of freedom.' "

Rhee, the Times reported, said of this statement: "That may be a good poicy, but I do not think General Eisenhower means to say bring American boys home now."

Symbolic Mistletoe

Mistletoe originally was symbolic of serious and sacred matters. The white berries were said to be the radiance caught from the star that guided the Wise Men to the Christ Child. They symbolized purity and peace.

Poll Says Ike . . .

it appeared that Ike was going to make inroads into this Democratic-Liberal vote, but his alliances with McCarthy, Taft and Jenner cooled a number of independent Democrats.

"This is particularly true among the Jewish vote, which is a big factor in Brooklyn.

"The Negro people don't like Sparkman, and Dewey's recent speech about the Alabama white supremacy ballot paid off. However, there appears to be too much indecision. Both Eisenhower and Stevenson are slated to come into Brooklyn this month and we should be able to get a more definite picture."

May Apply Upstate

Upstate, much the same situation may apply. Both major candidates are to make whistle-stop tours across the state this week.

In comments accompanying both surveys, several upstate editors said they felt Eisenhower would better Dewey's showing in the state.

Some said they believed the Nixon-fund incident had backfired on the Democrats. One editor remarked that "Taft Republicans have come off the fence to support Eisenhower, and Nixon's TV speech won many independents."

In the home of Cornell University, News Editor William J. Waters of the Ithaca Journal said:

"There has been a slight switch to Stevenson on his appeal to the large local educational group, a growing industrial element and some disappointments in Eisenhower's affiliations."

Here is a breakdown on the avowed political stands of the 66 papers that took part in the second survey: Republican or Independent Republican, 39; Democrat or Independent Democrat, 7; Independent, 19; Independent Liberal, 1.

Fifty of the papers support Eisenhower and 7 Stevenson. Nine have not endorsed either.

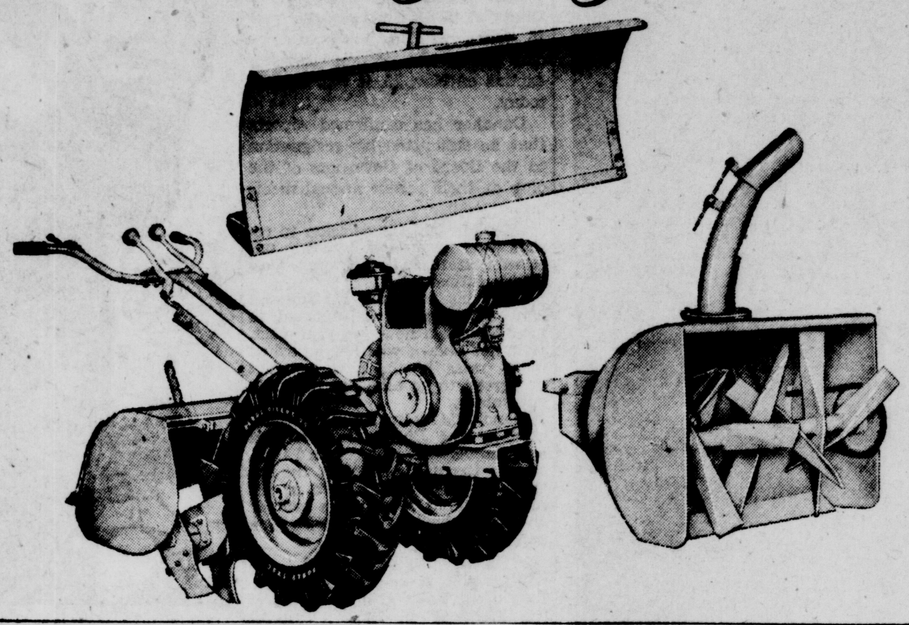

The general leads the governor in a straw poll of the state being conducted by the New York Daily News. Standings so far in the poll, which began early this month, are: Eisenhower, 53.9 per cent; Stevenson, 45.1 per cent and Hallinan 1 per cent.

Price Outlook Same

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Agriculture Department said today that retail food prices are likely to average about the same in 1953 as in 1952. In a report on next year's food outlook the department gave these prospects: Some increases in civilian buying of beef, veal, chicken, margarine, frozen fruits, juices and vegetables. These increases will be countered somewhat by lesser purchases of pork, eggs, turkey and butter. The outlook for food production next year is for some larger marketings of meat animals and increased output of fruits and vegetables if weather conditions are more normal than this year.

Tom Danaher to Leave Wiltwyck When Contract Expires Nov. 15

RESIGNS PRO POST AT WILTWYCK CLUB

The professional at Wiltwyck Golf Club since 1938, Tom Danaher, above, has submitted his resignation, effective Nov. 15. Danaher expects to be with the Fort Lauderdale Golf Club as assistant to Dick Baxter during the winter season. His plans for the future are incomplete. (Freeman Photo)

Uncertainty of Club's Future Is Motive

Tom Danaher, professional at Wiltwyck Golf Club for the past 15 years, will leave the uptown club when his present contract expires on Nov. 15, it was learned today.

Danaher has confirmed reports that he submitted his resignation to the Board of Governors of the club at their recent annual meeting..

Danaher said his decision to resign was prompted by the uncertain status of Wiltwyck Golf Club's future.

With his contract expiring on Nov. 15, Danaher is reported to have sought a new two-year pact. It is not known whether he asked for a raise in the new contract or agreed to go along at his present salary.

Danaher's terms were considered by the Board of Governors and the decision was reached that, due to the uncertainty of the future, the club might have to get along without a full-time pro for the time being. Danaher then submitted his resignaion.

Course to Be Revised

Wiltwyck is scheduled to lose four of its holes (Nos. 4-5-6-7) to the Thruway in 1953. Present plans call for the building of five new holes in the area south and west of the present No. 8 hole.

There is still some sentiment among club members for an 18-hole course on the available Wiltwyck property but Robert Trent Jones, the nation's foremost golf architect recently advised the members that they had to make a choice between "a good 9-hole or a mediocre 18-holer. . . ."

May Stay in Florida

Danaher said he had no immediate plans for the future except that he would make his annual winter sojourn to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he is an assistant to Dick Baxter, veteran pro of the Williamstown Golf Club at Williamstown, Mass.

The portly pro hinted there was a possibility he might land a year-round job at the Florida resort. He plans to head south on Nov. 16, the day after his contract expires at Wiltwyck.

Wiltwyck Golf Club officials have not announced any plans to hire a successor to Danaher. There is strong evidence that the club will have the services of a weekend pro during the rebuilding stages.

These plans, however, have not crystallized and no definite announcement is expected until the next meeting of the Board of Governors.

It Pays to Wear Yankee Uniform, Especially at World Series Time

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—The old saying that a Yankee uniform changes a ball player is correct—it changes him from a poor man to a rich one.

Red Patterson, New York Yankee publicity director, turned out figures yesterday to prove that playing for the Yankees was almost as good as owning an oil well.

The figures showed that since 1921, the Yanks' first pennant year, members of the Bombers have earned $3,148 extra per season in World Series cuts.

During the 32-year span the Yanks have won 19 pennants, and 15 world championships and $3,265,698 in series cuts. In addition, the Yanks have finished second six times, third five times and fourth once to swell the gravy to a grand total of $3,525,809. The only time the Yanks failed to whack up additional $$$ was in 1925 when they limped home seventh.

Based on the usual 35-man split each year, the extra gold averaged $3,148 per man.

Coach Frank Crosetti, the team's former star shortstop, has lugged home most of the extra dough. Crosetti has been with the Yanks since 1932 and has received more than $75,000 from the World Series' jack pots.

Second best over the same span to Patterson's figures, were members of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Redbirds averaged $1,465 for winning nine pennants and finishing in the money 26 times.

The average World Series share for the remaining clubs were as follows:

New York Giants, $1,147; Brooklyn Dodgers, $775; Detroit Tigers, $771; Chicago Cubs, $700; Cleveland Indians, $572; Pittsburgh Pirates, $517; Philadelphia Athletics, $501; Washington Senators, $458; Cincinnati Reds, $427; Boston Red Sox, $358; Philadelphia Phillies, $223; Boston Braves, $213; St. Louis Browns, $189; Chicago White Sox, $121.

Loose Moose Vamooses

Missoula, Mont., (AP)—"A moose is loose" was the startling call police officer D. W. Rumer heard on his patrol-car radio. He zipped over to Blaine street in the University district and found a big bull moose snorting through the neighborhood. Rumer gave chase and kept the moose on the move down an alley and across the Montana University football field. The moose left town by way of Mt. Sentinel.

Politicians' TV Haircuts

Binghamton, N. Y. (AP)—The TV appearance of President Truman and the presidential candidates leaves something to be desired, at least in the opinion of one barber here. Rupert Jurgia says someone has ran a pair of clippers high along the sides of Mr. Truman's head. "I don't know why he permits it," he said. "The President should taper from the top down, with no high ear line. Nobody on television should have a high ear line with a razor." About Gen. Eisenhower he said, "The general does not have much hair on top and should not let it grow too much on the sides. It is white there on the sides. Now Gov. Stevenson has none up on top," Juriga said, "so his haircuts all are done so that the hair on the sides grows back thinly so that it even grows over the ears. This should not be done. He should taper, too."

BOWLING

Two established veteran "name" keglers were out in front in last night's bowling matches in Kingston.

Rose Schatzel fired a 573 blast to lead the Women's Major, while Charlie Grunenwald, the stogie king, paced the Independent League with 601 at the Central drives.

Mrs. Schatzel, who is experiencing something of a slow start this season, fired solos of 201, 191 and 181. Elizabeth Bruck was six pins away with 206-567 and Marge Jansen socked 200-557.

Mary Elizabeth Schoonmaker unloaded the highest single of the night—223—and finished with 549. Charlotte Lapine posted 519; Evelyn Gross 507; Faye Horne 492; Winnie Overfield 488; Reta Frederick 487 and Miriam Posner 486.

Grunenwald sandwiched a 181 with 213 and 207 in the Independent wheel. Ed Trombley was runnerup with 211-576 and Knute Beichert pounded 575.

Other top shooters in the circuit were Eddie Marks 229-543; Ralph Halbert 212-542; Craig Plough 541; Tom Welch 534; Ray DuBois 517; John Davis 508 and Gene Vogel 500.

Brown Tops Minor

Best of the usual batch of "500" triples in the City Minor League was George Brown's 584. The softball ace reeled off successive scores of 165, 184 and 235.

Runnerup Joe Dulin spilled 215-573 and Ed Koskie slammed 200-564. Pete Nagy fired 205-556 and Mike Celuch toppled 223-545.

There was other good shooting, too, for Len Freer and Harold Baltz (226) for 537s; Joe Ausanio 536; Al Mazzucca 202-535; Dom Clausi and Leo Mellert 529; John Bartsch Sr. and Ed Smedes 527; Joe Maurer 525 and Millie Berardi 214-521.

Carolyn Enright Leads

A 454 triple, with 172-106-176, gave Carolyn Enright high series honors in the Junior Women's Major at the Bowlodrome. Rose Garafola hit 443 and E. Korth had 436.

The "400" club also included Marie O'Donnell 432; Arlene Raible 426; D. Szymanski 422; M. Leach 421; Y. Benicase 413; S. Raymond 406 and F. Orr 400.

Gen Whitmore, the Wiltwyck women's golf champion, rolled the top series of 152-116-145-413 in Monday afternoon's session of the BYA League.

Runnerup Nell Glennon rolled 409; Pat Pearson 375; Luella Port 374 and P. Hutton 341.

Now It's Liquid Steak

Columbus, O., (AP)—That he-man meal, steak smothered with onions and mushrooms, can now be poured into a glass and sipped like a drug store fountain drink. H. Ned Draudt, graduate student at Ohio State University and research chemist for Kingan and Co. of Indianapolis, Ind., is the man who turned the trick. The liquid steak is made to order for persons with dietary problems or persons having difficulty chewing. It can be drunk either like a cocktail or spooned like soup. It is an ideal solution to persons having waistline worries, Draudt said, for it is high in protein and low in calories. He said the steak would retail for 59 cents a can.

South Pasadena Plans Rose Parade Float

South Pasadena, Oct. 21 (AP)—Last New Year's day the Democrats wailed when South Pasadena's float was sighted in Pasadena's rose parade.

The float showed an elephant tromping into the front door of the White House and a donkey leaving at the rear.

City officials yesterday announced that their next float will be "a bicycle built for two," with a donkey and an elephant riding tandem. If Adlai wins next month, the donkey will be up front; if Ike comes through, the elephant will be riding in the front seat.

Catskill-Albany Keglers Hurl $2,000 Challenge at Miron's

Seek 9-Game Match At Three Alleys

The Miron Lumber bowling team of Kingston, current leaders of the Hudson Valley League, have been challenged to a $2,000, 9-game match by a combine of Catskill and Albany district keglers John Ferraro said today.

The challenge for the biggest stakes ever contested among area teams was issued by Bill Guldenstern, proprietor of the Catskill Recreation and a prominent match game shooter.

Ferraro said the Lumberjacks would accept the challenge for the match which is to be rolled at three establishments.

Dates for the match will be announced in the next few days after a meeting between Ferraro and Guldenstern.

Cramer To Bowl

According to present plans, Guldenstern, looking for "some excitement" in bowling, said he would draft the sensational Cohoes sharpshooter—Morris Cramer—along with Bill Bahret, Troy area rookie star, and Joey Schmidt, perennial Albany champion and a fourth kegler to be named later.

The format for the series calls for a total pin match at Ferraro's Bowlodrome, Catskill Recreation and Schade's Academy in Albany. The order of bowling will be determined by draw.

In accepting the challenge, Ferraro said the Miron Lumber squad would use its regular Hudson Valley League lineup of Hammerin,' Hank Kemmerer, Harold Broskie, Larry Weishaupt, Charlie Manfro (team captain) and himself.

Locals Confident

"Guldenstern has picked out the strongest lineup he could find in these parts," Ferraro pointed out, "but that doesn't scare us. It will give us a good chance to prove what we have always said, that the best team in Kingston is as good as you can find anywhere around."

Although Cramer and Howard Braun, former manager at the Ruzzo Bowlatorium, rolled a $2,000 singles test last spring, the proposed five-man team would be by far the most important ever staged in these parts.

Five-man matches for big stakes have been relatively scarce in the area and the biggest one old timers could recall was a prewar duel for $500 between The Barn Five of Kingston and a New Rochelle combine headed by Dom Shirghio, brother of the famous Mike Shirghio.

Are Nervous Fans

Disease Hits Harvard Elms

Turner Rebounds With Kayo Victory

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 21 (AP)—Gil Turner, Philadelphia welterweight, tuned up for his rematch with Bobby Dykes late next month by gaining a technical knockout over Johnny Cunningham of Baltimore last night.

Referee Jack Saurina stopped the fight after 1:35 of the fifth round of the scheduled ten round main bout to prevent Cunningham from being badly hurt.

Turner, who dropped a welter title bout by the same method to Kid Gavilan at Philadelphia last summer, weighed 148¾ and Cunningham 145¼.

DOUBLE-BARREL SHOTGUNS ARE EXCELLENT UPLAND GAME GUNS! MOST OF THIS IS CLOSE RANGE SHOOTING. SIDE-BY-SIDE BARRELS FORM A BROAD SIGHTING-PLANE FOR A MORE NEARLY SUBCONSCIOUS ALIGNMENT FOR QUICK SHOTS. TAPE WRAPPING OR A CHOKE DEVICE ON THE MUZZLE OF A SINGLE-BARREL ACHIEVES A LIKE RESULT.

LONG, SINGLE-BARREL GUNS WITH A SLENDER SIGHTING-PLANE IS BEST FOR A PRECISE ALIGNMENT ON HIGH OR LONG RANGE SHOTS AT DUCKS, ETC. OVER AND UNDER DOUBLES OFFER THIS SAME FEATURE.

Propose Radical Change in PGA

Detroit, Oct. 21 (AP)—Match play in the Professional Golfers Association tournament, would be cut to 16 players, instead of 64, in changes proposed to the PGA by the club that will be host to its 1953 tournament from July 1 through July 7.

The Birmingham Country Club voted yesterday to ask the PGA for a new tournament set-up. It got a quick OK from the Michigan PGA chapter.

It proposes that the defending champion and the 15 low-scorers in four days of medal play covering 72 holes compete in four rounds of match play in the final three days.

Now the defending champion and 63 low-scorers in two days of medal play over 36 holes compete in five days of match play for the championship.

Jack Calvert, Birmingham Club president, and Art Zebedee, tournament chairman, proposed the changes.

PGA President Horton Smith, pro at the Detroit Country Club, and Harry Moffit, PGA secretary, expressed preference for a change, which could be made by delegates to the PGA convention in Chicago Nov. 10 or by the PGA's 13-man Executive Committee.

A major reason advanced for the change is to guarantee the appearance of top-flight stars for four days, and thus increase the tournament box office take.

In many past tournaments upsets in the first day of play have eliminated major drawing cards.

Tom Danaher to Leave Wiltwyck When Contract Expires Nov. 15

RESIGNS PRO POST AT WILTWYCK CLUB

The professional at Wiltwyck Golf Club since 1938, Tom Danaher, above, has submitted his resignation, effective Nov. 15. Danaher expects to be with the Fort Lauderdale Golf Club as assistant to Dick Baxter during the winter season. His plans for the future are incomplete. (Freeman Photo)

Uncertainty of Club's Future Is Motive

Tom Danaher, professional at Wiltwyck Golf Club for the past 15 years, will leave the uptown club when his present contract expires on Nov. 15, it was learned today.

Danaher has confirmed reports that he submitted his resignation to the Board of Governors of the club at their recent annual meeting..

Danaher said his decision to resign was prompted by the uncertain status of Wiltwyck Golf Club's future.

With his contract expiring on Nov. 15, Danaher is reported to have sought a new two-year pact. It is not known whether he asked for a raise in the new contract or agreed to go along at his present salary.

Danaher's terms were considered by the Board of Governors and the decision was reached that, due to the uncertainty of the future, the club might have to get along without a full-time pro for the time being. Danaher then submitted his resignaion.

Course to Be Revised

Wiltwyck is scheduled to lose four of its holes (Nos. 4-5-6-7) to the Thruway in 1953. Present plans call for the building of five new holes in the area south and west of the present No. 8 hole.

There is still some sentiment among club members for an 18-hole course on the available Wiltwyck property but Robert Trent Jones, the nation's foremost golf architect recently advised the members that they had to make a choice between "a good 9-hole or a mediocre 18-holer. . . ."

May Stay in Florida

Danaher said he had no immediate plans for the future except that he would make his annual winter sojourn to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he is an assistant to Dick Baxter, veteran pro of the Williamstown Golf Club at Williamstown, Mass.

The portly pro hinted there was a possibility he might land a year-round job at the Florida resort. He plans to head south on Nov. 16, the day after his contract expires at Wiltwyck.

Wiltwyck Golf Club officials have not announced any plans to hire a successor to Danaher. There is strong evidence that the club will have the services of a weekend pro during the rebuilding stages.

These plans, however, have not crystallized and no definite announcement is expected until the next meeting of the Board of Governors.

It Pays to Wear Yankee Uniform, Especially at World Series Time

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—The old saying that a Yankee uniform changes a ball player is correct—it changes him from a poor man to a rich one.

Red Patterson, New York Yankee publicity director, turned out figures yesterday to prove that playing for the Yankees was almost as good as owning an oil well.

The figures showed that since 1921, the Yanks' first pennant year, members of the Bombers have earned $3,148 extra per season in World Series cuts.

During the 32-year span the Yanks have won 19 pennants, and 15 world championships and $3,265,698 in series cuts. In addition, the Yanks have finished second six times, third five times and fourth once to swell the gravy to a grand total of $3,525,809. The only time the Yanks failed to whack up additional $$$ was in 1925 when they limped home seventh.

Based on the usual 35-man split each year, the extra gold averaged $3,148 per man.

Coach Frank Crosetti, the team's former star shortstop, has lugged home most of the extra dough. Crosetti has been with the Yanks since 1932 and has received more than $75,000 from the World Series' jack pots.

Second best over the same span to Patterson's figures, were members of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Redbirds averaged $1,465 for winning nine pennants and finishing in the money 26 times.

The average World Series share for the remaining clubs were as follows:

New York Giants, $1,147; Brooklyn Dodgers, $775; Detroit Tigers, $771; Chicago Cubs, $700; Cleveland Indians, $572; Pittsburgh Pirates, $517; Philadelphia Athletics, $501; Washington Senators, $458; Cincinnati Reds, $427; Boston Red Sox, $358; Philadelphia Phillies, $223; Boston Braves, $213; St. Louis Browns, $189; Chicago White Sox, $121.

Loose Moose Vamooses

Missoula, Mont., (AP)—"A moose is loose" was the startling call police officer D. W. Rumer heard on his patrol-car radio. He zipped over to Blaine street in the University district and found a big bull moose snorting through the neighborhood. Rumer gave chase and kept the moose on the move down an alley and across the Montana University football field. The moose left town by way of Mt. Sentinel.

Politicians' TV Haircuts

Binghamton, N. Y. (AP)—The TV appearance of President Truman and the presidential candidates leaves something to be desired, at least in the opinion of one barber here. Rupert Jurgia says someone has ran a pair of clippers high along the sides of Mr. Truman's head. "I don't know why he permits it," he said. "The President should taper from the top down, with no high ear line. Nobody on television should have a high ear line with a razor." About Gen. Eisenhower he said, "The general does not have much hair on top and should not let it grow too much on the sides. It is white there on the sides. Now Gov. Stevenson has none up on top," Juriga said, "so his haircuts all are done so that the hair on the sides grows back thinly so that it even grows over the ears. This should not be done. He should taper, too."

Indiana Driver Cops Hydro Crown

Lake Alfred, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP)—Paul Wearly cemented his place as top driver of the 1952 National Outboard Championships by capturing the John Ward Trophy for Class C. Hydroplane.

The Munice, Ind., tombstone manufacturer won the U. S. championships in Class C and Class B hydros over the weekend He was the only racer to twin two titles.

The John Ward Trophy is awarded by the Union of International Motorboating and the winner is considered the world champion for Class C hydroplanes.

Wearly won over a four-man field cut short by prolonged rain. He took a first and second in the two heats for a decisive margin over Vic Scott of Bellmore, N. Y. who had a first and a fourth.

BOWLING

Two established veteran "name" keglers were out in front in last night's bowling matches in Kingston.

Rose Schatzel fired a 573 blast to lead the Women's Major, while Charlie Grunenwald, the stogie king, paced the Independent League with 601 at the Central drives.

Mrs. Schatzel, who is experiencing something of a slow start this season, fired solos of 201, 191 and 181. Elizabeth Bruck was six pins away with 206-567 and Marge Jansen socked 200-557.

Mary Elizabeth Schoonmaker unloaded the highest single of the night—223—and finished with 549. Charlotte Lapine posted 519; Evelyn Gross 507; Faye Horne 492; Winnie Overfield 488; Reta Frederick 487 and Miriam Posner 486.

Grunenwald sandwiched a 181 with 213 and 207 in the Independent wheel. Ed Trombley was runnerup with 211-576 and Knute Beichert pounded 575.

Other top shooters in the circuit were Eddie Marks 229-543; Ralph Halbert 212-542; Craig Plough 541; Tom Welch 534; Ray DuBois 517; John Davis 508 and Gene Vogel 500.

Brown Tops Minor

Best of the usual batch of "500" triples in the City Minor League was George Brown's 584. The softball ace reeled off successive scores of 165, 184 and 235.

Runnerup Joe Dulin spilled 215-573 and Ed Koskie slammed 200-564. Pete Nagy fired 205-556 and Mike Celuch toppled 223-545.

There was other good shooting, too, for Len Freer and Harold Baltz (226) for 537s; Joe Ausanio 536; Al Mazzucca 202-535; Dom Clausi and Leo Mellert 529; John Bartsch Sr. and Ed Smedes 527; Joe Maurer 525 and Millie Berardi 214-521.

Carolyn Enright Leads

A 454 triple, with 172-106-176, gave Carolyn Enright high series honors in the Junior Women's Major at the Bowlodrome. Rose Garafola hit 443 and E. Korth had 436.

The "400" club also included Marie O'Donnell 432; Arlene Raible 426; D. Szymanski 422; M. Leach 421; Y. Benicase 413; S. Raymond 406 and F. Orr 400.

Now It's Liquid Steak

Columbus, O., (AP)—That he-man meal, steak smothered with onions and mushrooms, can now be poured into a glass and sipped like a drug store fountain drink. H. Ned Draudt, graduate student at Ohio State University and research chemist for Kingan and Co. of Indianapolis, Ind., is the man who turned the trick. The liquid steak is made to order for persons with dietary problems or persons having difficulty chewing. It can be drunk either like a cocktail or spooned like soup. It is an ideal solution to persons having waistline worries, Draudt said, for it is high in protein and low in calories. He said the steak would retail for 59 cents a can.

South Pasadena Plans Rose Parade Float

South Pasadena, Oct. 21 (AP)—Last New Year's day the Democrats wailed when South Pasadena's float was sighted in Pasadena's rose parade.

The float showed an elephant tromping into the front door of the White House and a donkey leaving at the rear.

City officials yesterday announced that their next float will be "a bicycle built for two," with a donkey and an elephant riding tandem. If Adlai wins next month, the donkey will be up front; if Ike comes through, the elephant will be riding in the front seat.

Catskill-Albany Keglers Hurl $2,000 Challenge at Miron's

Seek 9-Game Match At Three Alleys

The Miron Lumber bowling team of Kingston, current leaders of the Hudson Valley League, have been challenged to a $2,000, 9-game match by a combine of Catskill and Albany district keglers John Ferraro said today.

The challenge for the biggest stakes ever contested among area teams was issued by Bill Guldenstern, proprietor of the Catskill Recreation and a prominent match game shooter.

Ferraro said the Lumberjacks would accept the challenge for the match which is to be rolled at three establishments.

Dates for the match will be announced in the next few days after a meeting between Ferraro and Guldenstern.

Cramer To Bowl

According to present plans, Guldenstern, looking for "some excitement" in bowling, said he would draft the sensational Cohoes sharpshooter—Morris Cramer—along with Bill Bahret, Troy area rookie star, and Joey Schmidt, perennial Albany champion and a fourth kegler to be named later.

The format for the series calls for a total pin match at Ferraro's Bowlodrome, Catskill Recreation and Schade's Academy in Albany. The order of bowling will be determined by draw.

In accepting the challenge, Ferraro said the Miron Lumber squad would use its regular Hudson Valley League lineup of Hammerin' Hank Kemmerer, Harold Broskie, Larry Weishaupt, Charlie Manfro (team captain) and himself.

Locals Confident

"Guldenstern has picked out the strongest lineup he could find in these parts," Ferraro pointed out, "but that doesn't scare us. It will give us a good chance to prove what we have always said, that the best team in Kingston is as good as you can find anywhere around."

Although Cramer and Howard Braun, former manager at the Ruzzo Bowlatorium, rolled a $2,000 singles test last spring, the proposed five-man team would be by far the most important ever staged in these parts.

Five-man matches for big stakes have been relatively scarce in the area and the biggest one old timers could recall was a prewar duel for $500 between The Barn Five of Kingston and a New Rochelle combine headed by Dom Shirghio, brother of the famous Mike Shirghio.

Disease Hits Harvard Elms

Turner Rebounds With Kayo Victory

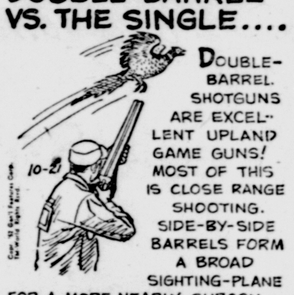

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 21 (AP)—Gil Turner, Philadelphia welterweight, tuned up for his rematch with Bobby Dykes late next month by gaining a technical knockout over Johnny Cunningham of Baltimore last night.

Referee Jack Saurina stopped the fight after 1:35 of the fifth round of the scheduled ten round main bout to prevent Cunningham from being badly hurt.

Turner, who dropped a welter title bout by the same method to Kid Gavilan at Philadelphia last summer, weighed 148¾ and Cunningham 145¼.

DOUBLE-BARREL VS. THE SINGLE....

DOUBLE-BARREL SHOTGUNS ARE EXCELLENT UPLAND GAME GUNS! MOST OF THIS IS CLOSE RANGE SHOOTING. SIDE-BY-SIDE BARRELS FORM A BROAD SIGHTING-PLANE FOR A MORE NEARLY SUBCONSCIOUS ALIGNMENT FOR QUICK SHOTS. TAPE WRAPPING OR A CHOKE DEVICE ON THE MUZZLE OF A SINGLE-BARREL ACHIEVES A LIKE RESULT.

LONG, SINGLE-BARREL GUNS WITH A SLENDER SIGHTING-PLANE IS BEST FOR A PRECISE ALIGNMENT ON HIGH OR LONG RANGE SHOTS AT DUCKS, ETC. OVER AND UNDER DOUBLES OFFER THIS SAME FEATURE.

Propose Radical Change in PGA

Detroit, Oct. 21 (AP)—Match play in the Professional Golfers Association tournament, would be cut to 16 players, instead of 64, in changes proposed to the PGA by the club that will be host to its 1953 tournament from July 1 through July 7.

The Birmingham Country Club voted yesterday to ask the PGA for a new tournament set-up. It got a quick OK from the Michigan PGA chapter.

It proposes that the defending champion and the 15 low-scorers in four days of medal play covering 72 holes compete in four rounds of match play in the final three days.

Now the defending champion and 63 low-scorers in two days of medal play over 36 holes compete in five days of match play for the championship.

Jack Calvert, Birmingham Club president, and Art Zebedee, tournament chairman, proposed the changes.

PGA President Horton Smith, pro at the Detroit Country Club, and Harry Moffit, PGA secretary, expressed preference for a change, which could be made by delegates to the PGA convention in Chicago Nov. 10 or by the PGA's 13-man Executive Committee.

A major reason advanced for the change is to guarantee the appearance of top-flight stars for four days, and thus increase the tournament box office take.

In many past tournaments upsets in the first day of play have eliminated major drawing cards.

Toronto Captain Leading Scorer In Hockey League

Montreal, Oct. 21 (AP) — Ted (Teeder) Kennedy, brilliant captain of the Toronto Maple Leafs, heads the closely bunched National Hockey League scoring parade today.

Kennedy, one of the best centers in the league, has collected nine points in five games. His harvest includes five goals, tops in the circuit, and four assistants.

Ted Lindsay, the quick-tempered captain of Detroit's powerful Red Wings, and his teammates, forward Metro Prystai, are deadlocked for runner-up honors with eight points each. Lindsay's production includes four goals and as many assists. Prystai has accumulated five assists and three markers. Prystai and defenseman Marcel Pronovost of the Wings share the lead in playmaking with five assists each.

Gordie Howe of Detroit, the league's scoring champion the past two years, is fourth with seven points while four players are tied for fifth place with six points apiece.

Montreal's Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, usually among the leading point getters or goal scorers, is among the also rans in the race. Richard has managed to garner only three assists in six games.

The Rocket is not expected to linger in that company for very long. According to Frank Boucher, manager of the New York Rangers, "Richard is skating better than ever this year but has run into tough luck."

Veteran goalie Sugar Jim Henry of the Boston Bruins sports the best goals—against mark, 1.50. Henry has permitted only six goals in four games. Terry Sawchuk of Detroit and lanky Al Rollins of Chicago lead in shutouts, with one each. Lindsay is the league's "bad man" with 30 minutes in the cooler.

Murry Dickson Retains Gopher Title; Early Wynn Tops in American

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—It'll be a sad day for National League power hitters when 36-year-old Murry Dickson of the Pittsburgh Pirates finally decides to put his rubber-arm in mothballs.

The little Buck righthander, who has been more than generous in serving up home runs to the Gordons and Sauers during his nine year career, led all major league pitchers in the gropher ball department for the 1952 campaign.

Wee Murry, holder of the big league "home runs off pitchers" record (39 in 1948), gave up 24 round trippers during the past season. He also led the National League in 1951 with 32.

In the American League, Cleveland's Early Wynn gave up the most home runs, 23.

The 32-year-old righthander, who posted a 23-12 record, yielded 13 homers to lefthanded batters and 10 to righthanders.

Wehmeier Near Top

Next to Dickson, Herman Wehmeier of Cincinnati gave up the most homers in the National League, 23.

The Pirates hurler however, appeared in 43 games and pitched 278 innings, second only to the Phillies' Robin Roberts in total innings pitched.

Then, behind the fastballing Redleg, came Philadelphia's Robin Roberts and Howie Pollet, Pittsburgh southpaw, with 22 each, Gerry Staley of St. Louis with 21 and Bubba Church, of the Reds and Phillies, with 20.

Bobby Shantz, Carl Scheib and Alex Kellner, all of the Philadelphia A's issued 21 homers to place behind Wynn in the American League.

Marv Grissom of the Chicago White Sox and Washington's Frank Shea each gave up six home runs, the least of the regular major league moundsmen.

Spartans Still No. 1

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Michigan State's rampaging Spartans continued their hold on the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press weekly football poll today by nosing out Maryland.

The result gives Michigan State a record of three out of four firsts. Only in the second week did the Spartans falter. That was when Wisconsin took over the top rung. State was second then.

The undefeated Spartans, who are making the experts look good—they were selected as the best team in the country in the AP's pre-season poll—had a margin of only 50 points over Jim Tatum's powerful Maryland outfit.

Maryland also was second last week, but the margin that time was 65 points.

State garnered 1,191 points, along with 49 firsts from the 138 sportswriters and sports casters from coast to coast who voted in the poll. Maryland, which has won five games, one more than Michigan State, had 1,141 points and 36 firsts.

The votes are tabulated by awarding 10 points for first place, nine for second, eight for third and so on down the line.

There were two newcomers to the first ten—Virginia, No. 9, and Wisconsin, No. 10. To make room for the pair, Kansas and Purdue, both of which were defeated last Saturday, went tumbling downward.

The most impressive gain was made by Oklahoma, which vaulted from sixth to third and gathered 23 first place votes along with 913 points. The Sooners just about wrapped up the Big Seven title for the fifth straight year with their triumph over Kansas.

After Oklahoma came California, No. 4; Georgia Tech, No. 5; Duke, No. 6; Southern California, No. 7, and U.C.L.A., No. 8.

Team standings with points figured on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes and season's records in parenthesis):

Other teams receiving votes were: Purdue, Boston U., Colorado, Minnesota, VPI, Miami of Ohio; Illinois, Stanford, Wake Forest, Princeton, Houston and Mississippi.

Pre-Season Gun Hints

By WARREN PAGE
(Shooting Editor)

One of the lads at the club range last weekend was having a hard time of it. He was trying to target his pet deer rifle, and couldn't seem to make the thing stay put—was scattering his shots all over the paper.

A couple of doliars worth of ammunition and some hot cusswords later he discovered what was wrong—the scope mount screws were loose. Two minutes with a borrowed screwdriver and he was back doing real business.

Screws loosen up, there's no doubt of it. They sometimes seem to do so even when the musket is out of use for months.

Before you case old Betsy for pre-trip targeting, be dead sure that the guard screws, fore and aft of the trigger guard and magazine floorplate on the bolt-action rifle, are set up hard. They're what holds the rifle together.

If it's a lever gun of the Winchester type there'll be tang screws to tighten firmly. Those muskets that use a long bolt running through the stock to tie down the action are a little tougher—that nut may be so hard to reach you'll have to make a trip to the local gunsmith shop.

With a smaller-bladed screwdriver be certain every little screw in your iron sight combination, or the scope mount, is dead tight. A wiggle-waggle there means a broken-hearted hunter later.

If your stock is a factory lacquer or varnish finish, swipe some of your good wife's furniture wax. If it's a true oil finish, a very light going over with the best "boiled" linseed you can buy will be enough.

It's sad news when you discover that a barrel shows rust inside after a summer on the rack, but unless the rust has actually pitted the bore deeply the gun is not in tough shape.

Run several patches through well soaked with a very good oil with penetrating qualities, and give it a scrubbing with a brass bristle brush. Soak it again with the solvent and let it stand for a day or two, then repeat the treatment. This will remove flaky rust; for a really rugged job get some rust remover from the local gun shop.

More gun actions suffer from being over-lubricated than from going dry, so if you strip Betsy down for a cleaning job don't soak the action parts in oil. Any but the finest will gum, and may so stiffen in the cold weather you get during the late season that you'll have misfires.

If you trip is into the cold country, high up, or you hunt in the border states and provinces during the fag end of November, for example, the safest action lubricant is a little bit of powdered graphite, rubbed into a rag and then rubbed onto the bearing surfaces. If you use even the finest quality of oil, use it most sparingly, only where obviously needed.

The metal part of a rifle or shotgun in use ordinarily need only a daily once-over with an oil-damp rag to stay in good shape. If you're as lazy as some of the rest of us, however, you'll want to try the silicone coating now being sold. All oil or grease must be carefully removed before they go on, but their tough thin coating lasts for a lot of woods use, once applied.

Get in a few hours on the range before you take off, just to refresh your acquaintance with that musket—and good hunting.

Boulder, Colo.—(NEA)—A play which starts out like a buck lateral pitch-out is a strong scorer for Colorado.

The fullback takes a direct snap from center and hands off to the quarterback, who in turn fakes a pitch-out, as shown in the accompanying diagram.

The quarterback keeps the ball, turns inside the defensive left end, who has been blocked by the guard pulling out.

The maneuver has to be properly executed, of course, which means each man has to take care of his assignment.

Toronto Captain Leading Scorer In Hockey League

Montreal, Oct. 21 (AP) — Ted (Teeder) Kennedy, brilliant captain of the Toronto Maple Leafs, heads the closely bunched National Hockey League scoring parade today.

Kennedy, one of the best centers in the league, has collected nine points in five games. His harvest includes five goals, tops in the circuit, and four assistants.

Ted Lindsay, the quick-tempered captain of Detroit's powerful Red Wings, and his teammates, forward Metro Prystai, are deadlocked for runner-up honors with eight points each. Lindsay's production includes four goals and as many assists. Prystai has accumulated five assists and three markers. Prystai and defenseman Marcel Pronovost of the Wings share the lead in playmaking with five assists each.

Gordie Howe of Detroit, the league's scoring champion the past two years, is fourth with seven points while four players are tied for fifth place with six points apiece.

Montreal's Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, usually among the leading point getters or goal scorers, is among the also rans in the race. Richard has managed to garner only three assists in six games.

The Rocket is not expected to linger in that company for very long. According to Frank Boucher, manager of the New York Rangers, "Richard is skating better than ever this year but has run into tough luck."

Veteran goalie Sugar Jim Henry of the Boston Bruins sports the best goals—against mark, 1.50. Henry has permitted only six goals in four games. Terry Sawchuk of Detroit and lanky Al Rollins of Chicago lead in shutouts, with one each. Lindsay is the league's "bad man" with 30 minutes in the cooler.

The Mature Parent

Consistent Discipline Vital To Children's Moral Power

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Fred's father was a rich business man. He was proud he had come up the "hard way" and attributed his success to his impoverished and anxious childhood.

The fact that he could provide his boy with expensive toys and other advantages worried him. He felt that they were bound to undermine Fred's ambition and turn him into a mollycoddle.

This feeling made him treat Fred inconsistently. When it dominated him, he would suddenly decide that his boy was a sissy and begin to jeer at him. Later, when Fred was older, his father would abruptly decide that his allowance was extravagant—and demand an immediate itemized account of all Fred's expenditures.

Always, after he had reduced his child to helpless anger, Fred's father would be overcome by conscience as suddenly as he had been overcome by jealousy. He would start praising him, telling Fred that he had only had his welfare in mind, that he had every confidence in his manliness—and propose a swimming pool for the garden or an increase in Fred's allowance.

Fred's ambition was indeed undermined—but not by custom-made bicycles. It was undermined by life with a father who was as incapable of consistent kindness as he was of consistent harshness. Fred, today, is an alcoholic.

When we are unjust to a child, we arouse anger in him. When we suddenly explain the injustice we have done as love and kindness, we place him in a most difficult position. He has to reverse his judgment on injustice, choke back his anger and say to himself, "How wrong I was. My parent is a noble soul."

If he has to say this to himself as often as Fred had to, he comes to distrust his intuition for all injustice and loses any respect for his own ability to distinguish between aggressiveness and friendliness.

Findings of a recent study by the University of Chicago show that consistent discipline is essential to children's moral power. In an article in "Understanding the Child," published by the National Association of Mental Health, Dr. Robert J. Havighurst writes, "The child who has received consistent discipline, whether severe or light, is likely to have a good character."

He has it because he has not been required to adjust his life with emotional chameleons who ask him to change his judgments so often that he ends up by not having any.

We cannot replace a loss of self-trust in a child by a swimming pool or an increased allowance. Such a point of view implies great love and dependence on money. Unless we recognize this, our attempts to undermine his feeling that injustice has been done can become the root evil for everyone concerned.

Health for All

The Greeks Knew

When we were school children we learned of the Greek ideal—"A sound mind in a sound body." Doctors and nurses in tuberculosis hospitals have long known that the personal problems of patients seemed to have a strong influence on their ability to get well. What were they to think of the young girl who was making excellent progress, but developed a cavity after getting an upsetting letter from home; or the model patient who did everything he was told, yet seemed quietly determined not to get well?

Modern research has confirmed these early impressions of the powerful influence of the mind on disease. Doctors recognize that it is not enough to treat the outward symptoms of tuberculosis. The personality of the patient, his fears and anxieties, his relations to his family, friends, and the whole community are equally important to his ability to get well.

Helping the tuberculosis patient return to his family and to his place in the community begins at the very moment that his disease is discovered. Unfortunately, there is still a great deal of ignorance and superstition about tuberculosis. The patient may be shocked and confused when he learns he has TB. He may feel ashamed of his illness or guilty about it.

In addition to fears that come from lack of understanding about the disease, he may have very real worries about what will happen to his family while he is ill, whether he will ever be able to work again, whether he will be looked upon as a social menace by his neighbors even after he is cured. Some patients refuse to go to the hospital, or leave before they are cured.

The entire hospital team: doctors, nurses, social workers, and others are alert to these problems and ready to help the patient with them. He soon learns that his family will get the aid it needs. He learns that almost certainly he will be able to lead a normal life when he leaves the hospital; that, if the disease leaves him handicapped to any extent, there are people to help him train for and get a suitable job. If his mental attitude or irrational fears hinder his recovery, there are experts to help him recognize his problems and deal with them constructively.

The understanding of the close relationship between mind and body in the treatment of disease has been one of the greatest forward strides in the century toward the defeat of tuberculosis.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

It is estimated there are about 52 million Protestants and 29 million Roman Catholics in the United States.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

'No Such Thing,'

publican senators who pushed through what the President calls discriminatory immigration laws.

Given to Jewish Group

He repeated the words in last Friday's speech read before the Jewish Welfare Board—a speech which is swelling into a major controversy with election two weeks away:

"The Republican candidate * * * cannot escape responsibility for his endorsements. He has had an attack of moral blindness, for today he is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race' although he took a leading part in liberating Europe from their domination."

Eisenhower took note of the growing controversy yesterday when he told whistlestop crowds at Providence, R. I., and Attleboro, Mass., that the administration had accused him of being anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic.

"How low can they get to try to sell that sort of thing?" he asked.

'No Such Thing'

"I said no such thing," Truman declared in his statement yesterday, "and indeed meant no such thing, and any fair person who reads what in fact I did say, must be as shocked as I am by the absurdities in the press of the last few days."

But, the President added, he did "not withdraw a word" of his Friday statement criticizing the general for endorsing GOP senators who voted for the McCarran Immigration Bill—passed by Congress over his veto.

"The practices of those senators—the practices of the big lie and of character assassination—are identified with the so-called 'master race' theory and no amount of distortion can change that fact," Truman went on.

Questions 'Endorsement'

"I know that the Republican candidate for president is neither anti-Jewish nor anti-Catholic, but why does he give his endorsement to such men?"

Both Eisenhower and Stevenson have called for modification of the McCarran Act, which among other things retains the quota system—the section attacked most severely by the President and other administration leaders.

Sen. Pat McCarran (D.-Nev.), whom the President has described as "not my kind of Democrat," said yesterday both candidates have been misled about provisions of the law which carries his name.

The attack on the law, McCarran said, "is a calculated effort to sabotage those provisions * * * which are designed to protect this country from subversive penetration."

Denies Knowing Girl

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Brooklyn baseball pitcher Billy Loes says he "didn't even know" the 20-year-old girl who claims he is the father of her unborn child. "I don't know anything about this girl," declared the 22-year-old Dodger hurler. "I never met any such person." The girl is Suzan Fulinello, who lives with her parents, a grandfather, five sisters and one brother in a five-room flat at Newark, N. J.

He has it because he has not been required to adjust his life with emotional chameleons who ask him to change his judgments so often that he ends up by not having any.

We cannot replace a loss of self-trust in a child by a swimming pool or an increased allowance. Such a point of view implies great love and dependence on money. Unless we recognize this, our attempts to undermine his feeling that injustice has been done can become the root evil for everyone concerned.

Health for All

The Greeks Knew

When we were school children we learned of the Greek ideal—"A sound mind in a sound body." Doctors and nurses in tuberculosis hospitals have long known that the personal problems of patients seemed to have a strong influence on their ability to get well. What were they to think of the young girl who was making excellent progress, but developed a cavity after getting an upsetting letter from home; or the model patient who did everything he was told, yet seemed quietly determined not to get well?

Modern research has confirmed these early impressions of the powerful influence of the mind on disease. Doctors recognize that it is not enough to treat the outward symptoms of tuberculosis. The personality of the patient, his fears and anxieties, his relations to his family, friends, and the whole community are equally important to his ability to get well.

Helping the tuberculosis patient return to his family and to his place in the community begins at the very moment that his disease is discovered. Unfortunately, there is still a great deal of ignorance and superstition about tuberculosis. The patient may be shocked and confused when he learns he has TB. He may feel ashamed of his illness or guilty about it.

In addition to fears that come from lack of understanding about the disease, he may have very real worries about what will happen to his family while he is ill, whether he will ever be able to work again, whether he will be looked upon as a social menace by his neighbors even after he is cured. Some patients refuse to go to the hospital, or leave before they are cured.

The entire hospital team: doctors, nurses, social workers, and others are alert to these problems and ready to help the patient with them. He soon learns that his family will get the aid it needs. He learns that almost certainly he will be able to lead a normal life when he leaves the hospital; that, if the disease leaves him handicapped to any extent, there are people to help him train for and get a suitable job. If his mental attitude or irrational fears hinder his recovery, there are experts to help him recognize his problems and deal with them constructively.

The understanding of the close relationship between mind and body in the treatment of disease has been one of the greatest forward strides in the century toward the defeat of tuberculosis.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

It is estimated there are about 52 million Protestants and 29 million Roman Catholics in the United States.

'No Such Thing,'

publican senators who pushed through what the President calls discriminatory immigration laws.

Given to Jewish Group

He repeated the words in last Friday's speech read before the Jewish Welfare Board—a speech which is swelling into a major controversy with election two weeks away:

"The Republican candidate * * * cannot escape responsibility for his endorsements. He has had an attack of moral blindness, for today he is willing to accept the very practices that identified the so-called 'master race' although he took a leading part in liberating Europe from their domination."

Eisenhower took note of the growing controversy yesterday when he told whistlestop crowds at Providence, R. I., and Attleboro, Mass., that the administration had accused him of being anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic.

"How low can they get to try to sell that sort of thing?" he asked.

'No Such Thing'

"I said no such thing," Truman declared in his statement yesterday, "and indeed meant no such thing, and any fair person who reads what in fact I did say, must be as shocked as I am by the absurdities in the press of the last few days."

But, the President added, he did "not withdraw a word" of his Friday statement criticizing the general for endorsing GOP senators who voted for the McCarran Immigration Bill—passed by Congress over his veto.

"The practices of those senators—the practices of the big lie and of character assassination—are identified with the so-called 'master race' theory and no amount of distortion can change that fact," Truman went on.

Questions 'Endorsement'

"I know that the Republican candidate for president is neither anti-Jewish nor anti-Catholic, but why does he give his endorsement to such men?"

Both Eisenhower and Stevenson have called for modification of the McCarran Act, which among other things retains the quota system—the section attacked most severely by the President and other administration leaders.

Sen. Pat McCarran (D.-Nev.), whom the President has described as "not my kind of Democrat," said yesterday both candidates have been misled about provisions of the law which carries his name.

The attack on the law, McCarran said, "is a calculated effort to sabotage those provisions * * * which are designed to protect this country from subversive penetration."

Denies Knowing Girl

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Brooklyn baseball pitcher Billy Loes says he "didn't even know" the 20-year-old girl who claims he is the father of her unborn child. "I don't know anything about this girl," declared the 22-year-old Dodger hurler. "I never met any such person." The girl is Suzan Fulinello, who lives with her parents, a grandfather, five sisters and one brother in a five-room flat at Newark, N. J.

Eastern Part of U. S. Is Clear and Frigid

(By The Associated Press)

It was cold and clear over most of the eastern half of the country today.

The cold Canadian air which chilled wide areas of the country over the weekend moved southward and temperatures dropped 10 to 20 degrees from the central plains to the Atlantic coast. Some warming was reported in the western plains while temperatures were around seasonal levels in the rest of the country. A little warmer weather was in prospect for the north central region.

The sub-freezing line extended across the northern tier of states with a low of 16 above reported in Lone Rock, Wis., 19 in Goshen, Ind., and 20 in Joliet, Ill. It was 28 in Chicago; 27 in Buffalo, N. Y.; 32 in Boston and 36 in New York. The mercury dipped to 39 at Little Rock, Ark.

The only wet spots early today were in Florida, parts of Washington and in the central plains.

Kelly Prefers . . .

a hunting rifle on May 22, 1950. He was convicted of first degree murder on Sept. 29, 1950, and three days later was sentenced to die in the electric chair.

The Court of Appeals reversed the conviction. A second trial was conducted, with Knapp representing Kelly. Defense witnesses said Kelly was irrational before the shooting and Kelly contended he remembered nothing about it.

He was convicted again Nov. 26, 1951, and this time his appeal was rejected.

Dewey Asks of Threat

At today's brief hearing Dewey asked Ulster County District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn, who appeared for the people:

"Isn't it a fact that he (Kelly) had threatened to kill Mrs. McHugh?"

Counsel agreed that Kelly had made threats for 30 days before the shooting, the last one only two days before it.

After Knapp's letter had been brought to the governor's attention, he said, "then I understand this clemency hearing is just out of courtesy for the condemned?"

"Yes," replied Knapp.

Says Kelly Recovered

The letter noted that doctors now agreed that Kelly "has recovered from the insanity from which they found him to have suffered."

The letter, dated October 20, reached the governor this morning. Knapp noted that he was enclosing copies of four letters "which seem to me graphically to present his (Kelly's) thought and personality."

One was written to a sister of the slain woman the day after the jury returned its verdict.

Knapp said he had found the defendant to be a man of "extraordinarily high" ethical standards. He added that he never had found Kelly to have lied on or off the witness stand.

Knapp's Conclusion

Knapp concluded his letter:

"In my judgment, the defendant is legally innocent of the crime of which he stands convicted and is the victim of a grave miscarriage of justice. However, wherever the fault for such miscarriage lies (whether in me, the prosecutor or the courts), it is clear that no responsibility for it rests at your door. Accordingly, I communicate to you the defendant's request that he be permitted to meet with dignity the death that the courts have decreed."

Grammer Defense

said could not have been caused by objects within the car.

Permitted as Evidence

Judge Herman M. Moser permitted as evidence a statement Grammer made to police saying he hit his wife with a piece of pipe after a half-dozen drinks because she said something about his thinking more of his job than he did of her. Grammer told the court he fabricated the account.

At the end of yesterday's testimony, Defense Attorney Anthony S. Federico wasn't sure what approach he would start with today. He implied he was considering putting Grammer on the stand but said he wanted to talk with the defendant first.

Miss Mizibrocky told Judge Moser, hearing the case without a jury, that she and Grammer met last November in a bowling alley. Their friendship blossomed into love, she said, and the two discussed marriage.

Says Religion Barrier

The only problem keeping them from marrying, she said, appeared to be that of religion. She said she is a Catholic. Grammer is a Protestant (Methodist).

She said Grammer never mentioned being already married.

"I saw so much of him I didn't believe he could have a family," she added. "He convinced me later he didn't."

She told of their 10-day stay at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago from July 25 to Aug. 4.

Federico, in cross-examination, asked if they stayed there as man and wife. She replied, "yes."

Before she left the stand, Judge Moser asked if she still loved Grammer.

"It's difficult to say. You love a person for what you think they are. Ed lied to me."

Four Men Are Killed

Fort Kent, Me., Oct. 21 (AP)—Four railroad section hands were killed and 20 others hurt yesterday when a Bangor and Aroostook freight thundered head-on into their small motor-driven work train on a curve. The railroad identified the dead as: Edmund Lavoie, 67, of Siegas, N. B.; Damase Daigle, 64, of Fort Kent; Jay B. Scribner, 38, of Bath; and Reno P. Cyr, 35, of Madawaska. Most seriously injured was Frank Lebel of Van Buren, who suffered a broken shoulder. The others escaped with cuts and bruises in leaping to safety seconds before the collision.

House Moved From Lackawack Dam

This 14-room house was moved last week by Arnold S. Rymkevitch of Boiceville from Lackawack Dam, a distance of five miles in the direction of Grahamsville on Route 55A. It required only two hours on the highway to move the structure, formerly used by the New York Board of Water Supply as a police barracks, but it took two weeks to prepare the house, to place wooden and steel beams beneath the foundation and set it on wheels. Heavy trucks were used to move the house, one of the last to be transplanted from the Lackawack Dam area. Rymkevitch is now beginning the removal of a number of houses on Sawkill road and Route 28 outside of Kingston to make way for new thruway construction in the area.

Eisenhower Comes Out for Jobs . . .

of being anti-Catholic and anti-Semitic.

Again he spoke out at Manchester and Nashua against "lies" and "slander" he said had been spread against him—and said he was grateful that Jewish and Catholic friends had come to his defense.

Pledges to Use Resources

The GOP presidential nominee pledged a GOP victory will mean an administration that will use every resource of the nation to see that everybody has a decent job at good wages.

Eisenhower promised to help small business to provide diverse industries for localities—and thus ease economic pressures. This statement came in an area that has felt the loss of textile industry to the southh with some resulting unemployment.

Eisenhower spoke in Manchester under a clear blue sky in contrast with the snow that greeted him in lower Connecticut at the start of his three day New England tour yesterday.

The weather was crisp. It had been below freezing during the night.

Weather Is Cold

Eisenhower wore the same camel's hair overcoat and tan muffler he wore yesterday. Most of his audience on Merrimack Common also was bundled up against a chill wind.

The general drove from his train across a Merrimack river bridge, through the city's mill section and back across another bridge into the heart of the city.

The number of people along the route for the early morning tour starting at 8:30 a. m. (EST), was sparse compared with the late afternoon and evening throngs that greeted him yesterday in southern New England cities.

Mill workers remained in their plants but watched from windows as Eisenhower's motorcade passed by.

Pushing himself and those around him at a machine-gun pace, the GOP presidential candidate put aside lofty appeals for the most part in favor of ram-rod counterattacks against the Democrats.

Through virtually every speech he made in this industrial northeast ran a scarlet thread of anger—anger against his one-time friend President Truman and charges he said have been made against him and his party.

Draws Big Crowds

Eisenhower was drawing big and enthusiastic crowds at each stop. Even snow flurries and cold winds failed to drive the people indoors. Late yesterday — as Eisenhower was running behind schedule—crowds waited in the cold for more than an hour to see him and hear him talk.

He spoke in some cities where Truman spoke last week and although Truman had the better of it in weather—police figured the general was out in front on crowd pulling appeal.

Police estimated the two broke about even on crowd sizes in Providence, R. I., 12,000 and Worcester, Mass., 8,000, but they said that in Fall River, Mass., and Taunton, Mass., Eisenhower had out-pulled Truman two-to-one in each city—10,000 to 5,000.

Eisenhower got his biggest responses when he assailed the Democratic administration. He was making liberal use of such words as "lies" and "falsehoods" and "corruption" and "distortions." He was fighting to smother whatever Democratic fires Truman might have started on his swing through this same area last week.

Goes to Massachusetts

The politically doubtful state of Massachusetts again was the main Eisenhower target today—with an opening speech in Manchester, N. H., (8:30 a. m., EST). He was to speak in Boston at noon, and then fly to New York city late in the day for an evening address before the New York Herald Tribune Forum.

Yesterday he began his last-lap campaign with 12 speeches and he had another seven on the schedule for today. And there was no sign he intended to slacken this pace before election eve regardless of weather.

The GOP presidential candidate opened this final phase of his campaign by saying he intended to discuss throughout New England the relationship between world peace and American prosperity.

In this theme he said that the cornerstone of peace must be a strong America—strong economically, spiritually, militarily.

President Raps GOP Claims About Communists in U.S.

En Route With Truman Through New Jersey, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Truman today described Republican claims his administration has been soft toward communism as an "outrageous falsehood."

Truman said the Republican high command has used "every propaganda technique and huge sums of money" to try to put over this "big lie" on the American public.

He said the government has been taking "concrete measures to fight communism at home and abroad" while Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his party have been "trying to sow false seeds of suspicion."

Truman made these statements in an address at Jersey City during a day of campaigning by train and automobile in the industrial east.

Hospital to Purchase Machine, Oxygen Tent

Purchase of a new diathermy machine and oxygen tent for Kingston Hospital was authorized last night at a meeting of the board of trustees.

John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., president of the board, said that plans for new hospital construction, now in the hands of Harry Halverson, Kingston architect, should be ready within approximately 60 days.

Deaths Reach 25

The purpose of the organization, which is a branch of the National Association of Educational Secretaries, a sub-division of the National Education Association is to elevate the standards of the educational secretaries within the state, to provide a finer understanding of the relationship between the school and the community so that ever-increasing efficient service may be rendered to the educational system.

Educational secretaries from five counties, Orange, Rockland, Sullivan, Ulster and Queens were present.

Eastern Part of U. S. Is Clear and Frigid

(By The Associated Press)

It was cold and clear over most of the eastern half of the country today.

The cold Canadian air which chilled wide areas of the country over the weekend moved southward and temperatures dropped 10 to 20 degrees from the central plains to the Atlantic coast. Some warming was reported in the western plains while temperatures were around seasonal levels in the rest of the country. A little warmer weather was in prospect for the north central region.

The sub-freezing line extended across the northern tier of states with a low of 16 above reported in Lone Rock, Wis., 19 in Goshen, Ind., and 20 in Joliet, Ill. It was 28 in Chicago; 27 in Buffalo, N. Y.; 32 in Boston and 36 in New York. The mercury dipped to 39 at Little Rock, Ark.

The only wet spots early today were in Florida, parts of Washington and in the central plains.

Kelly Prefers . . .

a hunting rifle on May 22, 1950. He was convicted of first degree murder on Sept. 29, 1950, and three days later was sentenced to die in the electric chair.

The Court of Appeals reversed the conviction. A second trial was conducted, with Knapp representing Kelly. Defense witnesses said Kelly was irrational before the shooting and Kelly contended he remembered nothing about it.

He was convicted again Nov. 26, 1951, and this time his appeal was rejected.

Dewey Asks of Threat

At today's brief hearing Dewey asked Ulster County District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn, who appeared for the people:

"Isn't it a fact that he (Kelly) had threatened to kill Mrs. McHugh?"

Counsel agreed that Kelly had made threats for 30 days before the shooting, the last one only two days before it.

After Knapp's letter had been brought to the governor's attention, he said, "then I understand this clemency hearing is just out of courtesy for the condemned?"

"Yes," replied Knapp.

Says Kelly Recovered

The letter noted that doctors now agreed that Kelly "has recovered from the insanity from which they found him to have suffered."

The letter, dated October 20, reached the governor this morning. Knapp noted that he was enclosing copies of four letters "which seem to me graphically to present his (Kelly's) thought and personality."

One was written to a sister of the slain woman the day after the jury returned its verdict.

Knapp said he had found the defendant to be a man of "extraordinarily high" ethical standards. He added that he never had found Kelly to have lied on or off the witness stand.

Knapp's Conclusion

Knapp concluded his letter:

"In my judgment, the defendant is legally innocent of the crime of which he stands convicted and is the victim of a grave miscarriage of justice. However, wherever the fault for such miscarriage lies (whether in me, the prosecutor or the courts), it is clear that no responsibility for it rests at your door. Accordingly, I communicate to you the defendant's request that he be permitted to meet with dignity the death that the courts have decreed."

Grammer Defense

said could not have been caused by objects within the car.

Permitted as Evidence

Judge Herman M. Moser permitted as evidence a statement Grammer made to police saying he hit his wife with a piece of pipe after a half-dozen drinks because she said something about his thinking more of his job than he did of her. Grammer told the court he fabricated the account.

At the end of yesterday's testimony, Defense Attorney Anthony S. Federico wasn't sure what approach he would start with today. He implied he was considering putting Grammer on the stand but said he wanted to talk with the defendant first.

Miss Mizibrocky told Judge Moser, hearing the case without a jury, that she and Grammer met last November in a bowling alley. Their friendship blossomed into love, she said, and the two discussed marriage.

Says Religion Barrier

The only problem keeping them from marrying, she said, appeared to be that of religion. She said she is a Catholic. Grammer is a Protestant (Methodist).

She said Grammer never mentioned being already married.

"I saw so much of him I didn't believe he could have a family," she added. "He convinced me later he didn't."

She told of their 10-day stay at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago from July 25 to Aug. 4.

Federico, in cross-examination, asked if they stayed there as man and wife. She replied, "yes."

Before she left the stand, Judge Moser asked if she still loved Grammer.

"It's difficult to say. You love a person for what you think they are. Ed lied to me."

Four Men Are Killed

Fort Kent, Me., Oct. 21 (AP)—Four railroad section hands were killed and 20 others hurt yesterday when a Bangor and Aroostook freight thundered head-on into their small motor-driven work train on a curve. The railroad identified the dead as: Edmund Lavoie, 67, of Siegas, N. B.; Damase Daigle, 64, of Fort Kent; Jay B. Scribner, 38, of Bath; and Reno P. Cyr, 35, of Madawaska. Most seriously injured was Frank Lebel of Van Buren, who suffered a broken shoulder. The others escaped with cuts and bruises in leaping to safety seconds before the collision.

House Moved From Lackawack Dam

This 14-room house was moved last week by Arnold S. Rymkevitch of Boiceville from Lackawack Dam, a distance of five miles in the direction of Grahamsville on Route 55A. It required only two hours on the highway to move the structure, formerly used by the New York Board of Water Supply as a police barracks, but it took two weeks to prepare the house, to place wooden and steel beams beneath the foundation and set it on wheels. Heavy trucks were used to move the house, one of the last to be transplanted from the Lackawack Dam area. Rymkevitch is now beginning the removal of a number of houses on Sawkill road and Route 28 outside of Kingston to make way for new thruway construction in the area.

Eisenhower Comes Out for Jobs . . .

of being anti-Catholic and anti-Semitic.

Again he spoke out at Manchester and Nashua against "lies" and "slander" he said had been spread against him—and said he was grateful that Jewish and Catholic friends had come to his defense.

Pledges to Use Resources

The GOP presidential nominee pledged a GOP victory will mean an administration that will use every resource of the nation to see that everybody has a decent job at good wages.

Eisenhower promised to help small business to provide diverse industries for localities—and thus ease economic pressures. This statement came in an area that has felt the loss of textile industry to the southh with some resulting unemployment.

Eisenhower spoke in Manchester under a clear blue sky in contrast with the snow that greeted him in lower Connecticut at the start of his three day New England tour yesterday.

The weather was crisp. It had been below freezing during the night.

Weather Is Cold

Eisenhower wore the same camel's hair overcoat and tan muffler he wore yesterday. Most of his audience on Merrimack Common also was bundled up against a chill wind.

The general drove from his train across a Merrimack river bridge, through the city's mill section and back across another bridge into the heart of the city.

The number of people along the route for the early morning tour starting at 8:30 a. m. (EST), was sparse compared with the late afternoon and evening throngs that greeted him yesterday in southern New England cities.

Mill workers remained in their plants but watched from windows as Eisenhower's motorcade passed by.

Pushing himself and those around him at a machine-gun pace, the GOP presidential candidate put aside lofty appeals for the most part in favor of ram-rod counterattacks against the Democrats.

Through virtually every speech he made in this industrial northeast ran a scarlet thread of anger—anger against his one-time friend President Truman and charges he said have been made against him and his party.

Draws Big Crowds

Eisenhower was drawing big and enthusiastic crowds at each stop. Even snow flurries and cold winds failed to drive the people indoors. Late yesterday — as Eisenhower was running behind schedule—crowds waited in the cold for more than an hour to see him and hear him talk.

He spoke in some cities where Truman spoke last week and although Truman had the better of it in weather—police figured the general was out in front on crowd pulling appeal.

Police estimated the two broke about even on crowd sizes in Providence, R. I., 12,000 and Worcester, Mass., 8,000, but they said that in Fall River, Mass., and Taunton, Mass., Eisenhower had out-pulled Truman two-to-one in each city—10,000 to 5,000.

Eisenhower got his biggest responses when he assailed the Democratic administration. He was making liberal use of such words as "lies" and "falsehoods" and "corruption" and "distortions." He was fighting to smother whatever Democratic fires Truman might have started on his swing through this same area last week.

Goes to Massachusetts

The politically doubtful state of Massachusetts again was the main Eisenhower target today—with an opening speech in Manchester, N. H., (8:30 a. m., EST). He was to speak in Boston at noon, and then fly to New York city late in the day for an evening address before the New York Herald Tribune Forum.

Yesterday he began his last-lap campaign with 12 speeches and he had another seven on the schedule for today. And there was no sign he intended to slacken this pace before election eve regardless of weather.

The GOP presidential candidate opened this final phase of his campaign by saying he intended to discuss throughout New England the relationship between world peace and American prosperity.

In this theme he said that the cornerstone of peace must be a strong America—strong economically, spiritually, militarily.

President Raps GOP Claims About Communists in U.S.

En Route With Truman Through New Jersey, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Truman today described Republican claims his administration has been soft toward communism as an "outrageous falsehood."

Truman said the Republican high command has used "every propaganda technique and huge sums of money" to try to put over this "big lie" on the American public.

He said the government has been taking "concrete measures to fight communism at home and abroad" while Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his party have been "trying to sow false seeds of suspicion."

Truman made these statements in an address at Jersey City during a day of campaigning by train and automobile in the industrial east.

Hospital to Purchase Machine, Oxygen Tent

Purchase of a new diathermy machine and oxygen tent for Kingston Hospital was authorized last night at a meeting of the board of trustees.

John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., president of the board, said that plans for new hospital construction, now in the hands of Harry Halverson, Kingston architect, should be ready within approximately 60 days.

Deaths Reach 25

Durban, South Africa, Oct. 21 (AP)—The death toll in yesterday's derailment of the night Durban-Johannesburg mail train—Natal's worst railway disaster—rose to 25 today with the death of two of the injured.
